Monkey Super-Men
This Is Fire Week
The Richest Don't Shoot
Industry and Science

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

PROFESSOR VORONOFF has made old men seem younger with the help of monkey glands, has made others take him seriously.

Now he proposes to create super-men such as Nietzche dreamed of, by using animal glands on young children of exceptional talent. He believes that he will create genius such as earth never saw, in the children of children thus created. The old-fashioned will believe that if monkeys could help create their race, nature and wise providence would have called on the monkeys long ago.

• • •

ALSO a race of super-men is just what the world does NOT want. Tall men like short women, thin women admire fat men, genius marries deliberately, all proof that nature wants us to march along side by side, about even, not a few far ahead of the others, or riding on the backs of inferiors.

• • •

THIS is fire prevention week.

Fire destroys more than five hundred millions of property yearly. Carelessness with matches, cigarets, imperfect electric wiring, etc., cause more than $500,000,000 of the loss. That amount, which ought to be saved, would pay the cost of our national building program, power, irrigation, canals from lake to ocean and Mississippi flood control in the few years.

• • •

LAWS should discourage carelessness. Imprisonment for life with no credit for good behavior nonsense should punish incendiarism. Property owners insure for full value and more, and then neglect fire precautions.

Proof of such neglect sought out by paid officials should cancel insurance automatically, and keep it canceled for three to five years. If that happened, fewer tenement house fires would happen. The landlord would sit up.

• • •

PREMIER BALDWIN says Britain and America will never fight. They may not always agree, but they will thresh out differences, or differ like friends and gentlemen. It's a safe prediction, for various reasons. If Britain and America fought, that hideous stupidity would put the world back 500 years, and financially speaking, ruin both countries.

• • •

IN addition, Britain and America have all they want and more than they want. Why should they fight? Ford, Rockefeller, Baker, Mellon are the four richest men in the world.

Can you imagine them going after each other with automatics; mustard bombs, etc.? They compete, fight hard for business and just a few more hundreds of millions, to make the game amusing. But they don't shoot.

• • •

GREAT industries not content with gigantic production, work constantly to produce better methods, of which the public gets the benefit. Standard Oil spends on research work, producing no immediate profit, more money every year than Mr. Rockefeller had when he was already considered a very rich man.

• • •

THE tube works department of United States Steel, making annually thousands of miles of steel and iron pipe for every conceivable purpose, spends large sums on the fight against erosion, studying testing methods for protecting iron against rust and destruction by chemicals in the ground.

It costs millions to renew pipe lines for the great oil companies every year. Find a way to protect iron from rust as copper protects itself and you will save for this country enough, to pay the national debt in 20 years.

• • •

THE Du Pont deNemours Co., which leads in important chemical research, announces discovery of a new chemical called "neozone," that protects rubber from deterioration through exposure to air.

• • •

RUBBER loses its elasticity, becoming brittle and worthless, because of oxygen's effect upon the rubber.

Union Men Sought Following Fatal Crash

St. Clairsville, Oct. 13—Dan Tonosky, 49, Cleveland, died today at the Ohio Valley Hospital at Wheeling, it was reported here, of injuries sustained late Tuesday when the auto in which he was riding left the road and overturned. Following Tonosky's death, search was being made in Harrison and Belmont Counties for several union miners who are said to have occupied an automobile which forced the non-union miners' car from the road.

COOLIDGE AND PARTY ARRIVE IN PITTSBURGH

President To Give Address at Founder's Day of Carnegie Tech

GREETED AT STATION

Chief Executive Visits Art Exhibit and Receives Diplomats

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13—President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived here early today after an uneventful journey from Washington, their first trip away from the capitol since they returned from a vacation in the Black Hills.

It was Mr. Coolidge's first visit to the steel city since he became president. He came here to be the principal speaker at the Founder Day exercises at Carnegie Institute. Late this afternoon he will board his special train and return to Washington, arriving there in time for breakfast tomorrow.

President Coolidge and his party including his secretary, Everett Sanders; Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon; Col. Blanton Winship, military aide; Maj. James Coupal, his personal physician and secreta service operatives under the direction of Col. E. W. Starling, left the train at East Liberty, a suburb, and proceeded by automobile to the home of R. B. Mellon, brother of the treasury head for breakfast.

400 Greet Party

It was 7:30 a. m. when the presidential special train pulled in at the East Liberty Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. A crowd of 400 persons braved the chill morning air to be on hand to greet the president and Mrs. Coolidge.

The reception committee, appointed by Samuel Hardin Church, president of the board of trustees of Carnegie Institute, boarded the president's car and extended the official greeting of the institute and the city of Pittsburgh.

Shortly afterwards the president, wearing a black topcoat and high hat, and Mrs. Coolidge in a gray coat and small felt hat, appeared on the observation platform and were greeted with a lusty cheer by the little group that assembled at the station.

They were escorted immediately to waiting automobiles and taken to the home of R. B. Mellon.

Chef Makes Muffins

Hours before the presidential special rolled into Pittsbugh the telephone wires between Pittsburgh and Washington hummed with important last minute details for making the president's visit here a pleasant one.

The chef at the mansion of R. B. Mellon, where the Coolidges breakfasted called the chef at the White House on long distance telephone and inquired what the president usually ate for breakfast. He found that Mr. Coolidge likes muffins, so he proceeded to bake the breakfast delicacy after the recipe obtained from Mr. Coolidge's own cook.

Receives Diplomats

After breakfast, Mr. Coolidge received foreign diplomats who came here to attend the International Art Exhibition held at the Carnegie Institute. Among them were Paul Claudel, French ambassador; George Cretziano, Roumanian minister; J. H. Van Royen, Netherlands minister; Robert Silverscruys, Belgian charge d' affaires, and Count Alberto Marchetti, Italian charge d' affairs.

The distinguished visitor and his party then entered automobiles and were driven from the Mellon mansion through the downtown district to the historic blockhouse on the site of Fort Pitt, which is preserved by the Daughters of the American Revolution. President Coolidge's stay at the blockhouse was brief and without ceremony. He left soon for the Carnegie Institute, founded by the late Andrew Carnegie, steel king, where he inspected the paintings on display at the International Art Exhibition.

SEEK AGREEMENT ON PAVING OF MEMORIAL BOULEVARD

Summary of Arguments Concerning Improvement of Vernon Heights Thoroughfare Adjoining Harding Memorial Assembled To Acquaint Public with Details

Belief that public sentiment will require city and county officials to reach an early agreement for construction of the Harding Memorial section of the Vernon Heights-blvd appeared to be the consensus of opinion expressed by citizens today.

The proposed improvement, designed primarily as a part of the Harding Memorial project, was temporarily blocked Tuesday when it came up for hearing before the board of county commissioners and the city filed protest against its share of the assessment. Accompanying the protest were claims for compensation and damages totaling $30,000.

The commissioners continued the hearing until Dec. 15 and a movement is now under way to effect a definite settlement so that construction of the boulevard can be authorized on that date and the work completed before dedication of the Harding Memorial.

According to the plans as outlined and approved by the county board, the major portion of the boulevard would pass through a strip of park land owned by the city and the entire cost of this section, a double line thoroughfare, would be paid by the city.

This arrangement furnishes the basis for the protest filed on authority from city council. It was presented by City Solicitor George T. Goran, who explained council believes it is unfair and unreasonable to ask the city to donate land for the boulevard and in addition pay the entire cost.

The $30,000 asked by the city in its protest includes $15,000 as compensation for the park land to be used for the boulevard right-of-way and $15,000 for damages. The protest does not define nature or extent of the alleged damage.

The commissioners and other county officials, backed by members of the city park commission and other citizens, present strong arguments against council's attitude.

They point out that the boulevard is essentially a city project and that the major portion of the cost should be borne by the city.

Argument Summary

Here is the summary of the arguments as assembled today: The proposed boulevard follows a course immediately adjoining the site of the Harding Memorial, a magnificent structure which is being built from contributions totalling approximately $800,000 coming from persons and organizations rep-

PROGRESSIVES WANT VOTES FOR NORRIS

Group Hopes To Gain Recognition in 1928 G. O. P. Convention

Washington, Oct. 13—Senate progressives, who have been holding daily conferences here, are planning to wage a determined fight to secure delegates for Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska in the 1928 Republican National Convention.

They labor under no belief that Norris can obtain the Republican nomination but they want to consolidate the progressive elements in the party so that they will command attention and will be able to get through some of their principles in the platform and in congress.

It is the present plan to enter Norris' name in the presidential primaries in about 15 states.

Senator Borah of Idaho and other conference spokesmen announced that the purpose of the plans to secure benefits for the West that heretofore, in their opinion have gone exclusively to the industrial East.

PAIR BLACKEN FACES TO ROB LOCAL WOMAN

Mrs. Carl Thomas 250 Bellevue-av, Held Up in Home; $5 Taken

CUT THROUGH SCREEN

Victim Seated in Chair Rocking Baby When Bandits Enter Room

Two men with their faces blackened staged one of the boldest robberies of the year at 9:30 o'clock last night when, after cutting the screen in the front door, they walked into the front room at the home of Carl Thomas, 250 Bellevue-av, and at the point of a revolver forced Mrs. Thomas who was rocking a baby, to hand over her pocketbook from which they extracted $5. They then made their escape without Mrs. Thomas obtaining any clew as to their identity.

Mrs. Thomas told police that she had hooked all of the screen doors and about 9:30 o'clock she was sitting in the front room rocking her baby, when she heard someone at one of the doors. Thinking it was her husband she was preparing to go to the door when the two men with their faces blackened suddenly appeared in the room.

Demand Money

Before she had time to arise from her chair, she said, the taller of the two reached her side and pointing a revolver at her face, said he knew she had money and demanded that she turn it over. Mrs. Thomas said she had been to the bank in the afternoon and had only a five dollar bill in her pocketbook, which she handed over to the shorter of the two men.

After taking the bill, the men demanded to know if she had any rings. Convinced that she had none the two backed out of the room and made their escape.

Unnerved by her experience, Mrs. Thomas was afraid to go outside the house and opening a window called for help. It was several minutes before neighbors heard her calling and notified the police. An investigation showed where the intruders had cut the screen in a door and reaching through and released the hook.

The fact that the hands which held the revolver and took the pocketbook were white, convinced Mrs. Thomas that the men had blackened their faces.

The three were stopped in an alleged stolen automobile. When the deputy sheriffs attempted to question them regarding the robbery of a filling station they fled. Hitchcock and Eddel halted but Kendall stopped only when two revolver shots struck him.

LANDS NEAR DUTCH SHIP GIRL WIRES

Broken Oil Line Forces Aircraft Down Beside S. S. Barendrecht; Both Now Aboard Vessel Believed in Bay of Biscay; Ship Bound for Texas

FIRST MESSAGE REPORTED BADLY GARBLED

Entire World Had Awaited for Word from Intrepid Girl Flier and Her Co-Pilot on Their Daring Transatlantic Flight from New York to Paris

LE BOURGET AERODROME, France, Oct. 13—"Haldeman and I okay." Ruth Elder flashed this laconic message into the Le Bourget Aerodrome this evening, when Paris and the rest of the world had begun to give up hope for the girl flier and her pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, who took off from New York on Tuesday in a transatlantic flight. They are aboard the S. S. Barendrecht.

Miss Elder's message came in badly garbled.

The telegram was as follows:

"Landed by S. S. Barendrecht with broken oil line. Both Haldeman and I okay. Ruth Elder."

Are Aboard Ship

The first message to Le Bourget from Miss Elder was later supplemented by radio advices from the S. S. Barendrecht stating that both fliers were aboard that ship on the "high seas."

The Barendrecht's position is believed to be somewhere in the Bay of Biscay. Miss Elder's message stated that her plane, "The American Girl," had been brought down beside the Dutch steamer with a broken oil pipe and both were safe. The message failed to state the position of the Barendrecht but marine advices were that the vessel was several days out from Rotterdam bound for Baytown, Texas, on Galveston Bay.

Future Unknown

It is still unknown whether Miss Elder and Haldeman will remain aboard the Barendrecht until she arrives in the United States or whether they will be transferred at sea to another vessel. The Dutch vessel will take more than three weeks to complete her voyage to Texas and it is expected that the fliers will strive for a transfer to another vessel.

Communication with the Barendrecht will be difficult as it is a small steamer and the messages received today were relayed to the French Steamer "Mayumba" which relayed it to a land station near Bordeaux and then sent overland to Paris.

Anxious Crowd Awaits

During the morning an anxious crowd had waited, braving a chill fog and had held hope against hope that the "American Girl" would arrive, even though flying conditions were so bad that the passenger planes leaving Le Bourget were forced to abandon their schedules. At one time there were 2,000 persons crowding about the field, but by 1 o'clock this crowd had dwindled to 150 and the special police were recalled from duty.

Reports from principal ports along the French coasts told of a night of dense fog and heavy seas, and these reports brought discouragement, for there were fears that if the Elder plane had landed in the sea it would not be sighted by passing ships and could not remain afloat long.

Meeting Bad Weather

Commandant Renydes, director of Le Bourget Field, was of the opinion that the plane was meeting very bad weather. He said:

"Steamers report by wireless that they are encountering heavy seas and thick fog. I understand the plane has enough gasoline aboard for a 40-hour flight. The limit of its endurance should be reached by 1 o'clock this afternoon. By this time Miss Elder and Captain Haldeman should certainly be somewhere over France but the fog may prevent them from being seen.

Blown Off Course, Fear

Marcel Dore, the French ace, said he feared the plane was blown off its course, either towards Ireland or the Mediterranean. He said:

"The platform of fog is about 800 feet from the ground. This is too low and too dangerous to fly under and perhaps Miss Elder was forced to fly above it.

In this case she may have been forced to drift either north or south even as far as Ireland or the Mediterranean."

Scan the Skies

All through the night, though hundreds of eyes from ships strung along the plane's route scanned the sky, and radio nets on two continents and a hundred ships listened intently for a few short dots and dashes announcing safety or disaster, that Atlantic which has clutched so many daring aviators to its cold, deep breast, remained as mysteriously silent as ever.

Although New York City was drenched with a downpour of rain and swept with a high wind, reports were made that the weather was better where the American Girl should have been had it kept its course. Radio companies reported that reception conditions were excellent, and the storm area near the continent, which has remained stationary for a week, was reported moving out of the plane's course.

That the plane had not been sighted during yesterday and last night was not construed as a sign that it had met disaster. Aviators pointed out that Haldeman may have lifted high above any wind currents or rain squalls. And a plane of the size of the American Girl, it was said, would be invisible to the naked eye at that height.

Again, flying men said, there was a possibility that the pilot may have missed the winds, rain and fog reported in his path by flying very low and very fast, or he may have been blown out of the steamer lanes by adverse winds.

BARENDRECHT 900 MILES FROM LANDS END

London, Oct. 13—The S. S. Barendrecht, which has picked up Ruth Elder and George Haldeman on their unsuccessful transatlantic flight is probably about 900 miles southwest of Lands End, according to officials of Lloyd's Register.

Lloyd's Register states that the ship left Rotterdam for Baytown, Texas, and on Oct. 8 was reported 140 miles southwest of Lands End. If she proceeded at normal speed she is now between 700 and 800 miles west of the Oct. 6 position.

Washington, Oct. 13—The comptroller of currency today issued a call for condition of national banks on Oct. 10, 1927.

PASSENGERS ON SHIP WATCH SKY

Aboard the S. S. Leviathan, Oct. 13—(Via Radio to Ins.)—The passengers of the Leviathan stayed up all night scanning the sky for a trace of the plane American Girl, carrying Miss Ruth Elder and Capt. George Haldeman to Paris.

Searchlights were turned on to act as beacons in case the plane should require them. These lights are visible for 100 miles.

800 Women Armed With Pads, Pencils and Umbrellas Brave Tempests To Attend Star's Cooking School

A VERITABLE cloudburst yesterday just at the time the women of Marion and environs were preparing to don their bonnets to attend the second day's session of The Marion Star's free cooking school, held no terrors for some 800 pupils, who armed with pencils and pads were in their places at The Star auditorium promptly when Mrs. George O. Thurn, the teacher, took her place on the platform at 2 o'clock.

Yesterday's crowd was every bit as interested and a trifle more enthusiastic during the lecture than that of the opening day, and the bombardment of questions hurled at Mrs. Thurn at the close of the talk proved that the women were there to find the answer to problems that had been lurking in their minds for some time as well as some suggested during the preparation of the afternoon's menu.

Theme of Talk

Mrs. Thurn chose for the theme of her talk, "The Child in the Home." Dependability, independability, ambition, obedience, industry, fairmindedness and thrift were among the characteristics to be desired in a child, she pointed out. "If they are dependable, they are trustworthy, and no parent need worry over a dependable child," she declared. "If they are independable they are able to do their own work, think out their own thoughts and judge the qualities in themselves which they find in others. Encourage them in some kind of work and point out the necessity of doing it. Thrift comes by training and is a quality which makes for comfort anywhere."

Recipes given by Mrs. Thurn yesterday are on Page 2 of this issue.

Attractiveness and palatability was the combination keynote of the menu yesterday which included ham mousse, raisin pie, white cake, escalloped tomatoes, fresh fruit salad and [illegible] coffee.

One delectable concoction more than another attracted the attention of the women as they passed through the temporary kitchen on the stage at the conclusion of the talk. It was the white cake with the boiled icing, and as each new group gathered around the table it was held up by some one for closer inspection as to its fineness and texture.

The concluding lecture as well as the menu for Friday is equally as attractive as the preceding days and Mrs. Thurn will give an equal number of suggestions on the [illegible] and economics of culinary

Mrs. Haldeman Cries for Joy at Good News

New York, Oct. 13—"Of course, I'm glad," Mrs. Haldeman exclaimed, "but I'm wonderful to know they're safe—but I never doubted for a minute that Ruth and George would be all right."

This was the comment of Mrs. George Haldeman, wife of the co-pilot with Miss Ruth Elder of the transatlantic plane "American Girl," which was reported picked up by the Dutch tanker Barendrecht this morning, when she was informed that her husband was safe.

"Naturally, it is a great relief to know that they are all right after these hours of suspense," Mrs. Haldeman said. "But I was never really worried.

"I had too much confidence in George's ability and his wonderful plane to really ever fear that they wouldn't go through with everything safely."

Mrs. Haldeman expressed disappointment in that the flight has failed to end [illegible] the happiest woman in this [illegible]

Wrecked and Wornout Cars Constitute Chief Stock in Trade of Dealers in Junk

Automobiles Have Taken Business Out of Scorned Occupations and Placed It on a More Respectable Basis, Claim

"Things ain't what they used to be," said the junk man as he viewed the mountain high piles of nondescript articles in his junk yard.

He was referring to present business conditions but his statement was more applicable to his stock in trade. The junk yard was well stocked,—that is, it seemed to contain at least one of every article ever manufactured between two seas. And they were in all stages of preservation from worn out to absolutely worthless. They certainly weren't what they used to be. Especially the high priced automobile that stood over in one corner of the yard. At one time it may have graced the finest home in the state. But today it stands there rooted axle deep in the mud.

Automobiles in fact seem to be the chief stock in trade of the junk dealer. At least they occupy the greater portion of space in the yards. One look at a junk yard and you cease to wonder where all the collegiate flivvers come from.

The automobile has taken the junk business out of the scorned occupations and placed it upon a more respectable basis. The junk man is no longer a "sheeney" but, a dealer in discarded motor cars. And as long as people buy new cars his business will thrive. As a side line junk yard operators remove parts from discarded cars, that can be resold. This constitutes no small part of their business.

The parts that are not salable as spare parts are sold to be cast again into iron bars or sheets from which new automobiles might be made.

Large, cumbersome pieces of metal that find their way into the junk yard are cut into small sections by a heavy cutter driven by an electric motor. The cutter takes everything as it comes and a half inch iron plate is cut almost as easily as the spindles of an iron bed stead.

When a sufficient quantity of iron is prepared for shipment it is loaded into railroad cars and is sent back to the steel mills, thus completing the first cycle of its existence. Improved methods of reclaiming old iron are now being employed, thus increasing its value.

Other Articles

But automobiles are not the only articles that eventually find their way into the junk yard. Even the most elegant contrivance fashioned from iron sooner or later finds its way out of the back door in response to the junk man's call of, "Any old iron today." Bedsteads that might have graced the bridal suits of the liner Majestic are of no more value than the cheapest iron bed from the room on the third floor of the back street rooming house when they both get to the junk yard. The wash board that surely brought hours of grief to some woman rates as good a position in the junk yard display as the worn out electric washer. And the brides first can opener is thrown in the same pile with a once beautiful chafing dish.

The junk dealer's first statement was correct.

Here's List of Recipes Demonstrated at School

The following are recipes for dishes prepared by Mrs. George O. Thurn, cooking school lecturer and demonstrator, Wednesday afternoon, at The Marion Star's free cooking school in session this week in the Star Auditorium.

HAM MOUSSE

Two cups boiled smoked ham, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ¼ teaspoon cayenne, ½ pint whipping cream, ½ envelope gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup hot water.

Soften gelatine in cold water, add hot water, whip cream stiff and fold into gelatine mixture. When partly set add ham chopped very fine and seasoning. Garnish and mold as desired. Serve with sliced tomatoes on lettuce and mayonnaise.

ESCALLOPED TOMATOES

Season one can of tomatoes with salt, one tablespoon sugar and pepper, grease a casserole well, put into it a layer of tomatoes, then a layer of bread or cracker crumbs, a few bits of butter for flavoring. Fill the casserole up this way with crumbs on top. Bake in moderate oven about 30 minutes.

RAISIN PIE

One and one-half cup flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup shortening.

Flake shortening into dry ingredients, mix water in with spatula or knife.

Filling

One and one half cups raisins (seeded), 2 cups water, 1 tablespoon fat, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 3 yolks of eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon lemon, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar.

Cook the raisins in water until the raisins are plump. Beat the egg yolks, add sugar and the cornstarch with a little water and add to raisins. Cook in double boiler about 10 minutes until thick. Cool and put in baked crust.

Meringue

Beat the three egg-whites until stiff and creamy, add 6 tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon at a time, and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Pile lightly on the pie and bake in a very slow oven 15 to 20 minutes.

White Cake

One and one-half cups sugar; ½ cup shortening; 1 cup sweet milk; 2½ cups flour; ½ teaspoon salt; 4 whites of eggs; 1 teaspoon vanilla; ½ teaspoon almonds; 2½ teaspoons baking powder.

Cream shortening and sugar. Sift flour three times with baking powder and salt, add milk and flour alternately, beating hard. Add flavoring. Fold in the beaten egg whites. Bake in two layers in moderate oven 375 degrees.

Boiled Icing

Three cups granulated sugar; ¼ cup white syrup; ¾ cup hot water; 4 egg whites; 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Put first three ingredients together and boil until it just begins to make a thread. Beat the egg whites only partially, add the baking powder while beating. Now pour on one-half of the syrup, beating the mixture all the while. Put the remaining syrup back on the stove and boil until a long, heavy thread is formed, and pour slowly over the first part. Add flavoring and beat until it holds its shape.

This is a delicious soft, creamy icing.

Frozen Fruit Salad

One and one-half tablespoons flour; one-fourth teaspoon dry mustard; three tablespoons sugar; one teaspoon salt; one teaspoon gelatin (soften in one tablespoon water); one egg yolk; one cup cream; three cups heavy cream; one egg white; two tablespoons butter; one teaspoon celery seed; two cups fruit cut out in small pieces, using bananas, oranges, white grapes or white cherries, and maraschino cherries.

Mix dry ingredients, beat egg yolks slightly, add one cup cream and stir into dry ingredients gradually. Cook in double boiler until thick. Remove from fire, add butter, gelatine and celery seed. Cool, fold in beaten egg whites, whipped cream and fruit. Put in pan of electrical refrigerator for three hours. Cut in squares and serve on lettuce leaf.

Lady Finger Pudding

One dozen lady fingers; three eggs; one tablespoon gelatine; three tablespoons water; three tablespoons sugar; one pint milk; one-half pint heavy cream; one teaspoon vanilla; one-eighth teaspoon salt.

Make a custard of the eggs, sugar and milk; soften gelatine in water, dissolve over hot water, add to custard and let cool. Fold in the whipped cream. Pour in mold lined with lady fingers. To make it more attractive, put red jelly between the lady fingers.

Uncle Sam Turns Pied Piper to Catch Rats Waxing Fat on Greenbacks, Bonds

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Uncle Sam turned Pied Piper today [illegible] his billions in the treasury department from a new menace—rats.

Ambitious as the installment [illegible], comparable to young kittens in size, rodents nightly play [illegible] seek in the gloomy corridors of the world's greatest money center.

A bite of a Liberty Bond here, a [illegible] sandwich of greenbacks there, or a bit from some secret document on the desk of Secretary Mellon is the diet up on which the treasury rats are growing fat.

P. A. Bergfeld, chief clerk, has started a war of extermination, with traps that would wreck a bear's career, with poisons and snipers armed with small rifles.

Crafty as a tax dodger, the educated financial rats wont approach an ordinary trap. Cheese as a bait is passe. The rat squad camouflages its traps and at the advice of the United States Biological Survey, lure the rodents to destruction with a systematic change of diet, ranging from grapefruit to potted ham dainties.

A dozen or more traps are set nightly. Latest reports from the rat campaign disclose that aside from the transients who drop in via the sewers from an occasional wild night of financial marauding in the money vaults, the regular treasury swarm has been reduced to a half-dozen old timers. These, more vigilant or shrewd than the rest, face certain doom, the ratters declared.

A special rat sniper was detailed to form a blockade over an area-way through which the rats cross to enter the treasury. The rats, with uncanny instinct, frequently rush the blockade in groups.

All the trouble has arisen from the destruction of a number of old buildings back of Pennsylvania-av, adjacent to the treasury, preparatory to launching the government's new building program. Driven from their ancestral homes, dating back to the Civil War, the rats find choice refuge in the treasury.

While the present invasion has been checked the chief ratter anticipates a heavier attack with the tearing down of another group of buildings on the avenue, including a hotel and one of the capital's large theaters.

"Just how we are going to bait a trap for theatrical rats, accustomed to feasting on the left-overs from chorus girls' parties is a problem which will be met when we come to it," the chief ratter said.

TO SUCCEED CECIL

London reports mention the Earl of Onslow, above, as possible successor to the post in the council of the League of Nations, made vacant by the resignation of Lord Cecil.

Canadian Farmer Merits Champ Wheat Grower Title

TORONTO, Canada, Oct. 13—The direct descendant of a soldier who fought under Napoleon, and subsequently settled in Westphalia, Germany, is in a fair way to revolutionize wheat growing in the grain belts of United States and Canada.

He is Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta, American born of German parents, and winner of the world's championship in wheat and oats growing.

It is claimed that Trelle's "mystery wheat" can be sown later and will ripen 18 days earlier than any other variety of wheat now known.

His experiments with it this year have been successful enough to warrant larger acreage plans for next season, and the prediction that by 1929 it may displace the now popular varieties in the northwestern grain areas.

Throughout the Canadian wheat growing west and adjacent United States territory, Trelle is noted for the persistency and success of his experiments, not only with grains but with fruit which many experts have declared could never be brought to maturity in such latitudes.

Gale-Like Coast Wind Sets Back Grayson Plane Hop-Off

SHIP MAY GET AWAY TONIGHT

Craft Withstands Blow; Fliers Confident, Anxious for Flight

Old Orchard Beach, Maine, Oct. 13—A fierce wind of almost gale-like force that tore down the New England coast this morning caused Mrs. Frances Wilma Grayson to postpone her projected hop to Copenhagen, Denmark, in the Sikorsky amphibian plane "The Dawn."

The plane, tied down with ropes and guarded throughout the night by a special detail of policemen, withstood the blow, although the wind swirled great quantities of sand about it.

At 7 a. m. the time previously set for the takeoff, Mrs. Grayson and Wilmer L. Stultz and Brice Goldsborough, who will go with her, definitely decided not to hop before low tide early tonight.

A heavy rain accompanying the wind caused Mrs. Grayson to fear that if a low pressure area was encountered at sea, the water would freeze and make "The Dawn" sag under the added load of ice.

The plane stands on the beach fueled, provisioned and inspected to its minutest detail—all ready for the take-off for Denmark.

Mrs. Grayson had planned to hop off yesterday between 3 and 5 p. m., but weather reports received from 15 steamships at sea showed the approach of the storm that battered the New England coast early this morning and which continued this forenoon, with prospects however of a diminishing wind at low tide between 5 and 7 p. m.

Mrs. Grayson and her flying partners, as well as the wives of the latter, expressed confidence of the success of the flight and all were impatient for the getaway.

Weather reports showed good flying conditions outside the local storm area here. Mrs. Grayson said: "I think we'll be under way before nightfall."

Woman, 24, Gives Birth to Sixth Child Another of Same Age Mother of Five

WHEN Miss Charlotte Faye Roush and her mother decide to hop into their airplane and spin over to Paris for a few days shopping, 20 years hence, they may easily be taken for sisters and when at the same time the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newton Hughes introduces his maternal parent as the mother of the head of this great commonwealth, people will take a second look to make sure she also isn't an older sister.

This could all very well be, but when interviewed yesterday little Miss Roush said nothing about being ambitious to become an aviatrix and young Hughes didn't so much as raise an eyebrow at the suggestion that he might some day be president. Their only concern right now seems to be that their meals are served on time and that for the remainder of the 24 hours they are left to snooze contendedly in their nice woolly blankets. Both babies are only four days old, born on the same day to mothers only 24 years of age.

Has Four Sisters

Little Miss Roush had four little sisters to welcome her when she opened her eyes in the Roush home, Cheney-av late Monday night. Perhaps her most cordial welcome came from little Bertha Irene Roush who was celebrating her third birthday anniversary and wanted as a gift a sleepy doll. Her other sisters are Dail Margaret, 7, Betty Louise, 6, Mae Catherine, 5. The baby is the sixth child born to Mr. and Mrs. Roush.

Young Hughes is the fifth child born to Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, Cottage-st, and has three other brothers, William Marion, 9, Francie Leo, 6, and David Elmer, 18 months, and one sister, Ollie Margaret 3 years old. Mrs. Hughes, who has been married twice, was only 15 years of age at the time of her first marriage.

Rev. Reynolds, Dr. Hoopes, Dr. J. C. Thuma, and Supt. E. D. Maurice responded with short talks at the bidding of Toastmaster Homer Aikens.

Plans were agreed upon for a four-team volleyball league to begin next Tuesday night and continue until Dec. 13 which will terminate the first half of the season and to begin the second half the first Tuesday night in January.

Holliday, Thuma, Lingo and Maurice will again captain the four teams with Maurice playing Holliday and Lingo playing Thuma in the opening games.

H. A. STEVENS' TRIAL BEGINS

Courtroom Filled as Hearing of Former City Clerk Opens

Howard A. Stevens, Marion attorney and former city clerk, is on trial before a jury in the court of common pleas today on an indictment charging him with having embezzled $9,294.73 while executor of the estate of Charles F. Ritter, former resident of Morral.

Hearing of the case began at 9 o'clock this morning and was expected to reach its conclusion about 3 o'clock.

The court-room was filled with spectators throughout the proceedings. H. D. Hyle of Cleveland and J. W. Jacoby of this city were attorneys for the defense and the state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann. John H. Clark, appearing as attorney for the Ritter heirs, assisted in the prosecution.

Witnesses Appear

Witnesses at the morning session included Probate Judge L. B. McNeal and G. Farr Lurie, who was appointed as executor of the Ritter estate to succeed Stevens.

Judge McNeal gave an account of Stevens' appointment as executor, testifying that Stevens did not file an accounting until after the lapse of three years. He was then cited to appear and show where the money shown in the account was located and was dismissed as executor when he failed to comply with the order, Judge McNeal said.

Lurie testified that no funds had ever been turned over to him by Stevens.

HARTZ INJURED

Seriously Hurt When His Racing Auto Drops Wheel

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 13—Harry Hartz, California automobile racer, today was on the dangerous list at Lawrence General Hospital where he was taken after his first mishap in a speedway event.

Hartz was seriously hurt at Rockingham Speedway, Salem, N. H., when his automobile dropped a wheel, overturned and was then destroyed by fire. Hartz escaped death by a miracle.

Hospital authorities state that he has a broken leg, a deep laceration of the scalp, and a possible fractured skull. Hospital authorities, however, were confident that Hartz would recover.

Hartz passed a "fairly comfortable night," it was stated at the hospital today.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT BOULEVARD STARTS ON PAGE 1

resenting the entire nation. It would be extremely unfortunate, it is pointed out, for the boulevard, an essential feature of the general memorial plans, to be held up by failure of local officials to finance it.

Marion County paid half of the cost of constructing the Harding Memorial section of the Marion-Delaware-rd improvement and can not consistently be expected to help finance the boulevard project, the commissioners and their supporters declare.

Inheritance tax received from the estates of President and Mrs. Harding totalled $40,487.49, half of which went to the city of Marion. In addition, President Harding bequeathed $25,000 to the city for park improvements. These figures are also cited among the reasons why the city should be generous in helping finance the boulevard project.

Another's Statement

The general trend of opinion seemed to be expressed in a statement made today by Hoke Donithen, a member of the Harding Memorial Association Executive committee.

"If city officials of Marion haven't enough pride to build this boulevard now, it will have to remain as a mud road until public sentiment results in election of officials who will do the right thing," Mr. Donithen declared.

He said that officers of the memorial association are not planning to take an aggressive part in the movement to have the city agree to the project as planned. He said emphatically, however, that it would be decidedly unfortunate to have the memorial completed and ready for dedication with a mud road passing it as a testimonial to lack of civic pride on the part of local officials.

The city park land included in the route of the boulevard is a strip 200 feet in width and approximately 1,900 feet long just outside the south corporation line between Marion Cemetery and the Harding Memorial grounds. Because of the entire boulevard route being outside the city, the proposed improvement must be authorized and constructed by county officials.

Doubled Driveway

The plans, as drawn by County Surveyor Leavens and approved by the commissioners, provide for a double line boulevard running through the center of the park land. At Leetonia-av, an extension of Forest-st, in Vernon Heights addition, it is proposed to continue with a single thoroughfare connecting up with the present boulevard in Vernon Heights.

The double boulevard would be paid for entirely by the city in assessments on the park land. Cost of the single thoroughfare at the east would be paid by assessments against the Vernon Heights Realty Co. and other property owners.

Estimates have been made on five types of paving for the double boulevard, leaving the choice up to the commissioners. The single thoroughfare would be of waterbound macadam. Plans as drawn by the surveyor leaves the second side of the double boulevard open at the east end so that it can be extended in the future.

City Project, Claim

The strip of park land was purchased about 20 years ago, the intention then being to use it eventually for completion of a boulevard system around the south and east sides of the city. The Vernon Heights boulevard, as now outlined, is merely a fulfilment of that plan and is obviously a city project, it is asserted.

Entrances for the double line thoroughfare are now constructed, having been installed when the Marion-Delaware-rd improvement was built.

City Council was unanimous in its objections to the schedule of assessments for the improvement, City Solicitor Geran said today.

Another "Intelligence Test."

Some days ago we made reference in these columns to proofs offered before a gathering of distinguished scientists to support the contention that some animals are capable of thinking, and cited a number of the tests given by a horse and a dog of far more than average intelligence.

A somewhat similar "intelligence test" to that given the horse in Paris was given a German shepherd dog at Columbia university, Monday, which was credited by Professor C. J. Warden with the possession of greater mental powers than are usually attributed to dogs.

The dog in question made evident before a class in psychology his ability to obey complicated commands without any visual cue, his owner remaining concealed behind a screen while issuing them. The dog trotted from the lecture platform and placed his muzzle in the hand of this or that member of the class designated by the number of the row and the number of the seat in which the student sat. He leaped over tables and chairs in the hunt for and to retrieve objects of which the names were familiar to him, but which he had never before seen. At the direction of his master, the dog laid his hand in the lap of a young woman designated by his master and refused to permit any one to approach her, as his master had directed. In every test, the dog acted without the slightest hesitation and unfailingly obeyed the commands of his master, which in several instances were suggested by members of the class.

As we previously remarked, the scientists are at last discovering much regarding the intelligence of horses and dogs which every lover of horses and dogs has long known.

Let's Not Have Any Controversy.

Some years since, as most of our people are aware, the city acquired ownership to a strip of land a couple of hundred feet in width, and immediately south of Marion cemetery, extending from the Delaware road eastward to what is now known as Vernon Heights, the plan being ultimately to utilize the tract as a boulevard by which to connect McKinley and Garfield parks in pursuance of a program for the beautification of our city and the convenience of our citizens.

If this boulevard phase of our city park program had popular approval at that time—as it did—as a desirable civic improvement, how much greater must be the popular approval of such a boulevard now, when its construction is virtually imperative!

To the south of the strip then was crop-bearing land. Today this land is an addition to Marion cemetery, and the northwest corner of it is the site of the wonderfully beautiful memorial to our one-time fellow-townsman, the late President Harding, which is nearing completion, and the work of beautifying the site is near at hand.

Across the Delaware road to the west of the Memorial site, a seventeen-acre tract has been purchased, and it is soon to be beautified in keeping with the Memorial site proper. The city park commission has a fund at hand with which to construct, and embellish with trees and shrubbery, a broad, hard-surfaced driveway from McKinley park to the Delaware road and the Vernon Heights boulevard, as this city tract is now known. Across the boulevard from the Memorial to the north is Marion cemetery, acknowledged to be one of the most beautiful in the entire land, and the ground to the east and south of the Memorial site is now the property of the Cemetery association, as stated, which is to be developed and maintained on a par with the association's original holding.

That anything so unsightly and out of step with the times as the present mud roadway should be permitted to lead up to such present and future beauty spots as these mentioned is simply unthinkable. That the strip should be improved and a high-class, hard-surfaced roadway in keeping with its surroundings be built over it will be generally conceded. We believe that the consensus of opinion is that the work of improvement should be taken up at the earliest opportunity possible, that it may be completed in readiness for the dedication of the Memorial next summer or fall, whichever time may be set. And we very sincerely hope that there will not be any controversy as to who or what shall bear the cost.

The people of America have contributed a free-will offering of something like $800,000 for the construction of the Memorial. It was their gift which made possible its location here. It is not a city, not a county, but a national shrine. Since the people of the land have done so much, nothing could be more unseemly, under the circumstances which obtain, than a controversy over the cost of its setting, a part of which is this approach. In this sense, both city and county are interested, but the work of making the improvement should be pushed, let the cost fall where it may. There should be no controversy, but cordial agreement. Any other course, we feel, will prove one of great embarrassment for long years to come.

We naturally assume that the magnificent new Pullman car, John Smith, has a twin, Pocahontas.

Because he gave a Metropolitan opera singer a nip of brandy, which a talking-movie concern claims hurt her voice and spoiled her renditions of the "Barcarole" from "Tales of Hoffman," the president of a New York musical bureau was dismissed and now he is suing to recover $1,250, a monthly installment on his contract salary of $15,000 a year. We do not care to start an added wet-or-dry discussion, but we can not help remarking that it would take more than a nip of brandy seriously to damage any gondolier's song we ever heard.

THE VOICELESS.

We count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,
But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild-flowers who will stoop to number?
A few can touch the magic string,
And noisy Fame is proud to win them—
Alas for those that never sing,
But die with all their music in them!

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone,
Whose song has told their heart's sad story—
Weep for the voiceless, who have known
The cross without the crown of glory!
Not where Leucadian breezes sweep
O'er Sappho's memory-haunted billow,
But where the glistening nightdews weep
On nameless sorrow's churchyard pillow.

O hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lip and fading tresses,
Till Death pours out his longed-for wine
Slow-dropped from Misery's crushing presses—
If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pang were given,
What endless melodies were poured,
As sad as earth, as sweet as heaven.

Not Fair To Expose Others.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

After every war there are epidemics of disease. Whenever great bodies of men congregate together, the conditions are favorable for the transference of disease from one person to a multitude.

It was true after the great pilgrimages to Jerusalem and Mecca. The masses of people mingling together permitted the germs of disease to do their unpleasant work. As the pilgrims returned home, traveling up the great rivers, they carried illness into Russia and parts of Asia. Since disease recognizes no geographical boundaries it was not long before Eastern Europe was invaded.

City life is well suited for the spread of disease. The wonder is we do not have contagious disease in epidemic form all the time.

There are certain insects and other animal pests which have the unpleasant habit of carrying illness. The louse conveys typhus. The flea carries bubonic plague. The mosquito malaria and yellow fever. The rat and other rodents are the vehicles to carry the infected flea. Even the bedbug is under suspicion as a conveyor of disease.

There are other diseases which are passed on by contaminated food and drink. Cholera, typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever and various intestinal disturbances may be spread in this way.

Society recognizes the importance and propriety of quarantine. For myself I fully agree to its necessity in many diseases.

The reason why we can not hope to wipe out some of the contagious or infectious diseases is because we can not recognize them at the very beginning of their onset. The disease is far advanced before its true nature is recognized.

What can be done by the average citizen is to apply the Golden rule. What do I mean by this?

When you have a sore throat, feeling of chilliness, running nose, headache, suspicion of fever, or that dreadful "tired feeling," you know there is something wrong with you. Under these conditions you should take no chance on your own health.

But this isn't all: You should not do anything to hazard the health of your fellow-men. If by any chance you have influenza or some other acute infectious disease, you should not mingle with your fellow-men, of course. The observance of the Golden rule will lead you to do as you would be done by. Find out what is wrong with you before you mix with others.

This is a sure thing—if you have fever you have no right, for your own sake and for the sake of others, to mingle with your fellows until the cause of your fever has been determined. Go home and get into bed. Stay there till the fever is gone.

Self-interest and the Golden rule demand that you give attention to the symptoms of illness.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

E.M.M. Q—I am twenty-four years of age, five feet tall. What should I weigh? I weigh about ninety-four pounds. How can I gain?

C.M.B. Q.—Is it possible to cure a patient who has been afflicted with leakage of the heart for seven years—the patient is twelve years of age?

A.—Some heart conditions can be outgrown; without knowing the exact condition of the patient it would be difficult to advise more definitely. Undue exertion and excitement are to be avoided in any case.—Copyright, 1927.

A PLEA FOR TOLERANCE.

Premier Baldwin's address to American Legionnaires in London will strike close to the heart of all America. It calls vividly to mind days when British, French, Italian, Belgian and American soldiers stood shoulder to shoulder in the greatest war of all time. It makes a plea for a return of that feeling of comradeship and good will which knit the men of these nations closely together a decade ago.

The British premier unerringly placed his finger upon an unfortunate truism. It is more difficult, he says, to make peace than it is to make war. A truism that the world has realized as the years passed. In spite of bitterness, the world is muddling through. In spite of debts and unsatisfactory trade balances, in spite of the weight of huge tax burdens, and in spite of racial differences, the friendships of the world continue. America's unofficial ambassadors, including the American legion, are doing much to cement those friendships. It is intercourse and personal contact that count in the friendship of nations as in the mere friendship of man to man.

Premier Baldwin's plea for tolerance on the part of America for the problems which Europe faces today—problems which have come down to the nations through the ages—warrants the earnest attention and sympathy of the people of the United States. This country is particularly blessed in its escape from such problems. And it behooves the United States to watch carefully that similar problems do not develop in the Western hemisphere to trouble us in the future.

The failure of the Geneva naval limitation conference brought regret to both Great Britain and the United States. The British premier is particularly happy, however, in his declaration that the failure of that conference has not and will not result in a great naval construction race on the part of the United States, Great Britain and Japan. The British navy budget will show no such program, he says. As the premier remarks, a conflict between the United States and Britain, between the two great English-speaking nations, might well wreck modern civilization, already rocked severely by the World war. And, as Mr. Baldwin says, such a conflict is unthinkable.—Washington Star.

OHIO FARMS.

Twenty-five years have worked a noticeable change in Ohio farms, both as to number and size, according to figures compiled by J. I. Falconer of the Ohio agricultural experiment station at Wooster. These figures show that in the whole eight classifications of farms, from those of under twenty acres to those of a thousand acres and over, there has been a decrease in number in the period from 1900 to 1925, the percentage of decrease varying considerably in the different classes, from 41.4C in the highest class to 1.9 in the class between 100 and 174 acres.

From 1850 to 1900 the average size of Ohio farms decreased, probably because wooded areas were cut off and sold to those who converted them into cultivable land. But since 1900 the tendency has been toward an increase in size of farms, which may be accounted for by modern methods and machinery which increase the facility with which farming is accomplished. As the size increased the number naturally decreased, there being 276,719 farms in the state in 1900 and 244,703 in 1925, a net decrease of 11.57 per cent.

It is interesting to note that the smallest percentage of decrease in number occurred in the farms of medium size, from 100 to 174 acres, thus showing an increase in relative importance. The very small and the very large farms decreased more rapidly than the average of 11.5. It would seem, therefore, that Ohio has found most practicable and profitable the farm of a "handy" size, large enough so that modern machinery can be used to good advantage and small enough to require a minimum of labor in addition to that of the owner.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TEACHER'S KNEES.

Teachers of a Detroit suburb win thier battle against a school board that wanted to put them into long smocks. The board decided that teachers shouldn't have knees. Two years ago a Chicago superintendent tried to put his thousands of teachers in uniform and failed. Not long ago a New York town wanted to impose a curfew on teachers. But the curfew didn't ring.

These efforts to impose unusual conditions on school teachers make one weary; and it is a sign of health in our teaching forces that they are resisted.

But the problem presented by these spasmodic and trivial efforts at puritanism is bigger than the mere regulation of dresses in the class-room. It is a part of that state of mind we have got into which wants to dictate the other person's way of living. Sure, put 'em in uniforms or smocks or anything your fancy seizes upon. Tell them when they shall go to bed and when they shall get up and what they shall eat for breakfast. If they don't obey, rail against them and say that moral life in America is disappearing, that the schools are undermined and that the country is going to the dogs. It is the great American sport—to draw pictures of pessimism with the left hand and with the right cut the cloth that goes into the other fellow's coat. If some of these "advocates" would propose the revival of the ducking stool, we'd almost be for it—for them.—Milwaukee Journal.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

The quality of restraint, or what might be called a fine sense of restraint, has a great deal to do with the making of character and with the making of happiness. The most effective public speakers are those who speak in such a manner as to give the impression of great reserve power—power that they are not using, but which they could use. In all our relationships we are impressed with quiet people who give us the sense of force. That comes from the quality of restraint.

We can not count on any quick material reward for the quiet and persistent overcoming of temptation. There are always temptations to be less than our best. Even when the resistance is successful and the temptation has passed the effort sometimes seems futile. But the day comes and comes soon when we find ourselves with a new peace of mind, a new sense of strength, a new feeling of comfort. That is the reward that comes from the cultivation of the quality of restraint.

Ancient healers and medicine men today among uncivilized tribes beat tom-toms to keep away disease or to effect cures. They are not so unscientific as they sound. Dr. Jules Regnault, former chief surgeon of the French navy, says that in using the vibrations of sound, light, electro-magnetism, and other waves to help effect cures, the modern physician is simply taking a page from the book of the past. The curative value of music is recognized in hospitals for the insane. Music, in addition to its place in the field of art, may have a future in the field of science.

We wonder and are sometimes aghast at the changes in modern thinking and modern ways. But when we see how differently people are housed and live today the wonder is that their thinking and acting have not been changed more. For example, about 3,000 people are assembled each day in an office building. In some office buildings there are many more than that. These people are working very close together at all sorts of different tasks More and more and more they are crowding into cities and changing from the habits of their fathers. How different from life in the beginning of the republic!

Thomas Henry Buckle, who wrote the great "History of Civilization," says the character of races has largely been determined by geography and climate. And so the thinking of modern folks is partly determined by tall office buildings and crowded apartment houses.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 13—It is only in Brooklyn one sees babies in public. In sixteen years of living in Manhattan I do not remember seeing more than a dozen infants in arms along Broadway, Fifth avenue, and other crowded centers. This does not apply to the lower East Side.

People of wealth blessed with babies, immediately move to the country, as a rule, and those who remain keep offsprings in an almost mystifying seclusion. As an example I have been an occasional visitor at a certain home for two years.

It was only day before yesterday I learned they had a daughter going on three years of age. It happened I walked, by accident, into the nursery and there was a beautiful child. She had a play-room that must have cost several thousands to equip.

There was a solarium, intricate weighing machines, a private bath and a French governess in charge. Parents think nothing here of going to Europe for the season or on a trip around the world, leaving the children in charge of competent governesses.

There are innumerable baby specialists whose incomes are enormous. Some charge as high as $50 a visit. No matter how stupid nurses take them to the specialists for weekly examination. Often parents are not permitted to see babies without special permission.

This hothouse method of baby culture has grown surprisingly in the past few years. Some mothers resent it, but those who wish to continue a social life find it relieves restraint. In one wealthy family it is said the baby's annual keep is $500 a week.

Incidentally, there is a lady whose income is amazing as an expert baby namer. She is versed in astrology and numerology and stows names to fit in with these sciences.

His life is encompassed largely in a fight for curiosity on the part of strangers and he is only with those of his own stature he is accepted in a natural manner. The midget is almost invariably a great reader and his literature is largely of the swash-buckling, romantic sort, an existence he is denied in real life.

Views of Those in Public Eye

JAMES R. SHEFFIELD.

James Rockwell Sheffield was born in Dubuque, Iowa, August 13, 1864. He began his career as secretary to United States Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa, in 1888. Later he settled in practice in New York city and was elected a member of the New York assembly in 1893. Sheffield was appointed fire commissioner of New York in 1895 and the following year was elected president of the board. He was appointed ambassador to Mexico in 1924 and resigned in 1927.

The former ambassador declares that the protection of United States property rights in Mexico is necessary. He says:

"I have not seen any signs that there has been a complete settlement of our difficulties with Mexico. I certainly did all I could to bring about a settlement.

"I think that American property rights should be protected under international law. I have always believed that property acquired legally under the laws and constitution as they existed at the time the property was acquired by foreigners, should be protected.

"There is no reason why we should not insist that our nationals should be protected in other countries. Is is important because of the increasingly large amount of American capital that flows out to foreign countries. Property legally acquired under the laws should not be taken away without just compensation.

"I have always maintained the deepest affection for the Mexican people, and I have always been interested in all phases of their progress. My trouble was with the Mexican government—not with the people of Mexico.

"I was treated with every consideration by the Mexican people. I have nothing but good will for Mexico. If she can work out a solution of her problems no one would be happier than myself. If she can't do so herself she will have to be helped."

LEGION PLANS ARMISTICE DAY

Post Also Arranges To Aid Veterans in Filing Compensation Claims

Plans for a schedule of meetings and social activities, including observance of Armistice Day and arrangements for assisting World war veterans in filing applications for adjusted compensation under the government insurance system, were outlined at a well-attended meeting of Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 162, of the American Legion, held last night.

Three additional members were appointed on the Armistice Day committee, which will meet next Monday night to make final arrangements for the annual celebration on Nov. 11, which is now designated in Ohio as a legal holiday.

In discussing the adjusted compensation question, it was decided to urge all World War veterans who have not applied for their insurance to do so at once, as the time for filing applications will expire on Jan. 1. Under plans outlined by the government, ex-service men are given 20-year paid in full endowment policies without any charge.

Plan "Pep" Meetings

Approximately 20 per cent of World War veterans throughout the country have not taken advantage of the insurance plan, a survey shows. If this average prevails in Marion County, approximately 400 ex-service men in Marion County are included in the 20 per cent, it was stated at last night's meeting.

Arrangements were made for holding a series of "pep" meetings and to award a prize at each meeting. The first event in this program will be the night of Oct. 26. This will be featured by a Halloween program and reports from members who attended the American Legion convention in Paris.

Representatives of Bird-McGinnis Post at Paris were Probate Judge L. E. McNeal, Lewis Kull, Clarence Bowe and Captain William Killoch of the Salvation Army.

Judge McNeal arrived home yesterday and Kull and Bowe are expected within a few days. Captain Killoch will not return to Marion, having been assigned to Salvation Army work in another city.

Bird-McGinnis Post will sponsor observance of American Education week here. This program, scheduled for the week of Nov. 7, will be in charge of the committe named to plan for Armistice Day.

An interesting feature of last night's meeting was a talk by Charles E. Lehmar, representative of the local Reo-Chandler automobile agency. He discussed the spirit and principles of the American Legion.

SELFRIDGE FIELD PILOT WINS RACE

Five Thousand-Acre Airport Is Dedicated at Dayton, Ohio

Dayton, Oct. 13—Lieut. I. A. Woodbury of Selfridge Field, (Michigan), is the 1927 winner of the John L. Mitchell speed trophy for Curtiss pursuit planes, it was announced here today by army officials at Wilbur Wright Field. The race was held late yesterday in connection with the Columbus Day dedication exercises held at the 5,000-acre flying field donated by this city to the government results were not announced until today.

Woodbury's average speed for the 120 miles was 168.96 miles per hour. Lieutenant Lawson of the same field was second with an average of 158.90 miles perhour, and Lieutenant Gregg, third with 158.43 miles per hour. Lieutenant J. H. Doolittle of Wilbur Wright Field finished fourth with 158.07 miles, and Lieutenant Hovey, Selfridge Field, was fifth with 156.02 miles.

The other 10 fliers who participated were disqualified for cutting pylons. All starters finished. Judges declared that low visibility was the cause for fliers missing the pylons and cutting the course.

During the race Maj. R. A. Hale, and Lieut. M. S. Lawson, drifted away in an experimental free balloon, and have not been heard from since, according to flying field officals.

PYTHIANS HOLD ANNUAL MEET

Two Ohio Grand Lodge Officers Attend Past Chancellors' Session

Two Ohio grand lodge officers and several other prominent visitors were guests of honor last night at the annual meeting of the Marion County Past Chancellors' Association, held at the hall of Canby Lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias.

C. E. Willoughby of Canby Lodge was re-elected president of the association. Other officers elected are Paul Raub of LaRue, secretary, and P. E. Heller of Morral, treasurer. Vice presidents are chosen by the eight Knights of Pythias lodges in the county.

Prominent Pythians present were Charles Root, of Newark, grand chancellor, E. E. Corriell, Bowling Green, grand keeper of records and seal, H. R. Snyder, Cleveland, Pythian deputy for Cuyahoga County, and F. G. Sparks, Mt. Vernon, Knox County deputy. There were six other visitors from Cuyahoga County and six from Knox County.

First Official Visit

This was the first official visit of the grand chancellor following his recent election to the highest state office at the grand lodge meeting in Newark. He outlined his tentative plans for the coming year in an address given following the annual banquet of the past chancellors' organization.

After-dinner talks were also given by Corriell, Snyder and Sparks.

The banquet was served at 8 o'clock by the women of Canby Temple, Pythian Sisters.

The meeting following the banquet was open to all members of Knights of Pythias lodges and representatives of practically every organization in the county were present.

Plan Meeting

Preliminary plans were made for a general county meeting to be held the latter part of November or early in December, with Frederick S. Atwood of Minneapolis, supreme lodge prelate, as the principal speaker. Mr. Atwood is known throughout the country as the "blind orator of Pythianism." He spoke here about three years ago and was pronounced as one of the most talented speakers ever heard at a local gathering.

Plans for the meeting will be reported to all the eight Marion County Lodges.

U. S. COMMISSIONER FREE UNDER BOND

Thomson, Toledo, Charged with Conspiracy in Prohibition Case

Toledo, Oct. 13—Frank G. Thomson, U. S. commissioner, here, is free under $2,000 bond today, following his arrest last night on a conspiracy charge in connection with the prosecution of a federal prohibition case. Miss Ruth Hollinger, Thomson's stenographer, and Jack Thomas, are also free under $2,000 bond each, in connection with the conspiracy charge.

The arrests were made by Deputy U. S. Commissioner William Appleman. According to Appleman's allegations, Charles Rafful complained to him, he had been approached Wednesday by Thomas, who asked for money to have a prohibition case dismissed. Appleman charges he saw Rafful give $300 in marked money to Thomas, and that the latter went to Thomson's office and saw it turned over to Thomson's stenographer.

Thomson was called to his office, after the alleged conspiracy was uncovered, and placed under arrest.

No date for a preliminary hearing has been set by U. S. Commissioner Fred Gaines, who fixed bond in the case.

Thomson charges his arrest and the allegations are a "frame-up."

Home-made Supply of Fine Cough Syrup

Better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily prepared.

If you combined the valuable properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real healing power as there is in this home-made syrup, easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and it is splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, which has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Peter's Adventures

The Star's Daily Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE S. VINCENT

ALL the while Mother Rabbit had been speaking Peter's eyes had been searching the Cabbage Patch. Mrs. Rabbit had said she had looked for her little son in every spot and corner, but the cabbage heads were so large and he so small that she might easily have missed him, especially if he didn't wish to be seen.

"That's queer!" said he, aloud. He had seen something.

"What's queer?" asked Mother Rabbit, quickly, turning to him.

"The lower branches on that gooseberry bush in the corner are shaking, moving—I just saw them—and there isn't a bit of wind. And what is that bit of gray among the green?

"Look, Mrs. Rabbit! Doesn't it appear to you like the tip of a little gray ear? And what are those bright things twinkling out at us if they are not eyes? Aha, I thought so. There was only one ear a moment ago—now there are two. Mother Rabbit, I shouldn't wonder if"——

Mrs. Rabbit, however, never waited for Peter to finish his sentence. She completed it for him.

"My runaway son is under that gooseberry bush!" declared she. "Little rascal! I shall box his ears well when I catch him, and I am going to catch him this time, for now I know where he is. Not another nibble shall he have tonight. He shall go to bed supperless.

"Sunny-Bunny must be taught a lesson. Time and time again have I told that child not to sneak off alone to the farm.

"I have warned him not only of the enemies that lurk in the long grass and behind logs and stones, but also of Two-Legs himself! 'Tisn't that I think it is wrong for Sunny-Bunny to nibble a bit of cabbage or lettuce now and then—that only serves the Farmer right—but I fear his unsuspecting baby feet will be caught in a terrible trap that lies hidden just within the garden fence. Even while I stand here talking to you Sunny-Bunny may take a notion to hop in that direction. Or he may turn down a side path and meet the Cat!"

Mrs. Rabbit's whiskers trembled with anxiety, and without another word to Peter away she leaped after her truant son. So fast she traveled that 'twas only by the violent shaking of the clover tops that the boy could keep track of her.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

WHY THE TIRED BUSINESS GIRL MARRIES

WHEN a middle-aged man marries, asserts a popular writer, it is not in order to escape loneliness, but in order to achieve it! He is looking, not for a soul-mate, but for a good alibi—a shield and barrier between him and all the poachers, time-wasters and pests, including women.

• • •

This is a little startling; but, after all, if it is true of the Busy Business Man, it may be true also of the Tired Business Woman.

• • •

Why does a successful modern business woman exchange her freedom, her independence and the attentions of a lot of men for the inattention of just ONE?

• • •

With a good income, a ducky little apartment, a snappy little car, and plenty of good clothes, good friends, and good times, why does she so often annex a man?

• • •

Does SHE, too, seek an alibi and a "rest cure?"

• • •

After all, "My husband thinks, says, wants, will or won't" is as good an alibi as "My wife won't let me!"

• • •

Just the magic words "My husband" spoken in the right tone, will put every other man in his place—from the amorous employer to the snippy elevator boy.

• • •

After a hard day at the office, it is far easier to go home and listen to a one man's monosyllables, than to go out and listen to a lot of men's applesauce.

• • •

It is far easier to cater to one set of habits and idiosyncrasies all the time than to have to live up to a different man's deals every evening.

• • •

It is far more comforting to have one man around who understands you, than to jazz around with a lot of men, most of whom bore you.

• • •

This business of keeping marcelled, made-up and "peppy," keeping up with the game, keeping on the go, keeping engagements and keeping a list of admirers, gets SO tiresome, after a while!

• • •

It's nice and cozy and restful and relaxing to have someone around, for whom you don't have to scintillate and sparkle and keep your nose powdered; to whom you don't have to play houri and vamp and "Wonder Woman."

• • •

Of course, an ideal husband should be an inspiration, a partner, and a soul-mate. But, falling short of that, almost ANY fairly good husband is a "rest cure!"

• • •

You don't have to hide the worry-wrinkles, or the little puffs under the eyes, or the gray hairs sneaking out here and there, from a husband. You don't have to keep him guessing! He knows, he knows, HE knows! He has your NUMBER; and if he is still fond of you and companionable, he's as much of a stimulant as you need after a hard day at the office.

• • •

Single-blessedness is not half so blessed as it sounds or looks!

Have You Acid Scalp?

If your hair won't keep the simplest wave for several days, there is probably too much acidity. A condition that causes hair to be stubbornly straight and stringy, and to lack all lustre. Acid scalp.

From the hour you check this excessive acidity your hair will act and appear very different. It will arrange easily in any style that becomes, for it will have lovely softness, and all the sheen all healthy hair normally has. Danderine will neutralize the acid, and actually dissolve every particle of dandruff scale. Your hair won't need anything else to keep it fresh, wholesome, and free from the least objectionable faint that is to often noticed in otherwise fastidious women.

Danderine sells for only thirty-five cents a tany drugstore, and as only a few drops on comb or towel will do the work, a bottle lasts for weeks!—Adv.

Relieves Tension—Soothes Nerves.

Do you feel like going back to bed?

AFTER YOU have dressed your children, fed them, and sent them off to school, do you feel like going back to bed? Do you shrink from your daily task of dish-washing and house-cleaning? Are you tired? Discouraged?

Many women have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for that tired feeling. It builds up the appetite. It induces natural sleep. Read what these two women say about it.

GAINED 18 POUNDS

Cleveland, Ohio:—After having my first baby I lost weight no matter what I did. I went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble. Mrs. M. Reissinger, 10004 Nelson Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Remember this package. None genuine without the signature of Lydia E. Pinkham.

NERVOUS SPELLS GONE

St. Paul, Minn.:—I used to get nervous spells that would last a couple of days and were so bad that I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight. One day a little booklet was left on my porch and I read it through. I found a case similar to mine. I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have had fine results. Now housekeeping doesn't tire me. Mrs. Jack Lorberter, 704 Dellwood Place, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Sally's Shoulders

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "MONEY LOVE," "THE HOLLYWOOD SWEDE"

Read This First

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of the family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MABEL, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY afternoons, down town.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants her to marry him and keep on working. But the only man in whom she is interested is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her. Sally is heartsick and unreasonably jealous.

Beau and Millie spend most of their earnings on themselves, and Sally's only real financial help is an occasional check sent to Mrs. Jerome by her absent husband. Every now and then she is forced to borrow from AUNT EMILY JEROME, who is giving up school teaching to turn her old home into a wayside inn serving chicken dinners.

Beau manages to get $110 from Ted Sloan by means of two bad checks and Ted threatens to turn him over to the police. Sally borrows $110 from Mr. Peevey and gives it to Beau to pay his debt with. But Beau uses the money to elope with MABEL WILMOT, his jazzy, slangy little fiancee.

Upon their return the newly married pair quarrel with Millie, who has turned Beau out of his bedroom in the flat.

Millie's love affair with John Nye goes serenely on. She gives up all her other admirers for him, including a man named DAVIDSON. Sally meets Davidson at a dance and he asks if he may come to see her. She tells him he cannot.

Aunt Emily plays peace-maker in the family by having Beau and Mabel at her house for a fall picnic on a Sunday when the others are to be there. Mabel tells Sally a sad story of Beau's extravagance, and Sally loans her five dollars.

Now go on with the story

CHAPTER XXVI

LATE that afternoon, when long blue-gray shadows lay across Aunt Emily's lawn, a big, brown car drove in between the gate-posts and came to a stop before the steps of the house.

"Why—it's John Nye!" Sally cried, her wistful eyes on the tall, dark, good-looking man who swung himself out of it. Something in her voice made Aunt Emily give her a sharp, quick look before she trotted briskly away to welcome him.

"So it is!" drawled Millie, pulling herself up from the basket chair where she had been taking a quiet "cat nap." He said last night he might drive out to get me today—"

"He can take us ALL home and we won't have to ride the crowded street car!" Mrs. Jerome broke in eagerly. Before Millie could stop her she was half-way across the lawn calling to him.

"Oh, Mr. Nye, how nice of you—I'll go right in and get my hat and be ready in a minute!" She went up the steps with a swiftness that she had not shown in years.

Mabel burst into a laugh. "Well, look at the old girl go, will you!" she giggled. "She sure can show some speed when she wants to, can't she?" Mabel probably never had read the Ten Commandments, and knew nothing about honoring her mother and father—or her mother-in-law or anyone else, for that matter. She had no respect for anyone, really. She laughed again, and Beau laughed with her.

Millie gave them a blighting look. "How can you laugh about a thing like that?" she asked bitterly. "I think it's terrible—wishing herself on him for a ride home! When she knows perfectly well that he came out for us; and for nobody else!—I could just shake her!"

Mabel, still giggling, turned to Beau. "Well, as long as your mother's going to drive in with Mr. Nye, you and I may as well go along, too," she said to him. "Come on, darling."

They jumped up from the grass where they had been sitting, holding hands. They were still in that blissful honeymoon state where they were not happy unless they were making love to each other.

Millie groaned, watching them cross the lawn with their arms linked lovingly. They got into John Nye's car as if they owned it.

"Isn't that the pink limit?—Wishing the whole family on him?" she appealed disgustedly to Sally, as she shook out her rumpled pink dress and fluffed up her tousled yellow hair. "Well, come along, we may as well start."

But Sally shook her head and did not stir from her cushion on the grass.

"No, thanks, Millie. I'm going to stay and have supper with Aunt Em," she said quietly and firmly. Not for worlds would she have driven off in John Nye's car behind him and Millie. Not for anything.

She stayed where she was, holding up a magazine in front of her as if she were reading. She did not lower it until she heard Aunt Emily calling "Good-bye" to everyone, and then the low murmur of the brown car as it started away.

"Was I very rude?" she asked when Aunt Emily, trim and severe in gray linen, came back across the smooth grass to her. "And do you mind if I stay for supper? I invited myself." She put down the magazine.

Aunt Emily did not seem to have heard her questions. She stood squarely in front of her, with her piercing eyes on Sally's big blue ones.

"Sally!" she said finally. "You like that man of Millie's, don't you?"

The question came so unexpectedly that Sally answered it almost without thinking. She answered it with a short little nod of her head and a "Yes" that was more like a quick sigh than a word.

And then she found herself telling her aunt all about it. Aunt Emily, for all her snap and matter-of-factness, was the kind of person to whom other people go with their troubles and their confessions.

Confession is good for the soul, and it has a way of taking a load off the heart, too. And Sally felt a certain relief when she had told Aunt Emily the whole story.

"It's silly to say I'm in love with him," she wound up, looking dreamily across the garden at the autumn roses, dimly pink in the dusk, "but I think I am—without really knowing him, Aunt Emily. I saw him one day in the elevator in our building, and the next minute I was so in love with him that I couldn't take my eyes from him."

Aunt Emily smiled. Her smile was a mere quiver of her straight mouth.

"I wouldn't give much for that sort of love," she said. "That isn't the real kind. You've got to know a person to really know that you love him, my dear child."

Sally's face brightened a little. "I hope that's true," she declared. "I hope this is just a passing fancy—I wish I didn't think about John Nye all the time. It bothers me, and I'd like to get over it."

"You probably will. Love's like the mumps. It hurts while it lasts, but it doesn't last forever."

Aunt Emily began to pick up the cushions from the grass and set the basket chairs up against the old willow tree.

"Let's go in and get something to eat, and then I'll walk down to the car line with you," she said. "Let's see, there's cold chicken and tongue and some tomatoes."

There were a good many other things on the table in the cool, peaceful dining room—peaches and cold biscuits, and two kinds of cake.

But Sally ate almost nothing. Aunt Sally noticed that, while she chattered about the changes she was going to make in the house as soon as she started serving chicken dinners to the public.

"I'm going to have the dining room and the parlor thrown into one room," she explained, looking through the doorway at the big shadowy room beyond the dining room.

It was the loveliest room Sally had ever seen. A room of faded flowered chintzes dim old family portraits in gilt frames, and blue Bristol glass vases filled with Aunt Emily's fall roses.

All her life it had been a pleasure to Sally to think that she belonged to a family who had owned a room like that. It was the kind of room that fine, gentle people had lived in. People of good taste. People who had had a love for beautiful, simple things just as Sally herself loved them.

"I hate to think of your spoiling the house that way," she told Aunt Emily later when they were waiting in the hot thick darkness for a street car.

Her aunt grunted. "The world 'do move,' my dear, and I'm going to keep moving with it!" she replied. "And I'm sick and tired of staying in my school teaching rut any longer. If this new thing means giving up part of my house, I don't care! I wish you'd come into it with me."

Sally shook her head. I can't," she said decidedly. "Not just now. We've a load of debts that have got to be paid off, and fall's coming on and we've all got to have new coats and things. No, I can't quit my job right now. It's a sure thing, and doesn't take all of my time."

Aunt Emily was silent for a minute. Then she said "Hmm!" She said it scornfully.

"Lets go in and have something to drink," she suggested, taking Sally's arm to lead her into the drug store on the corner.

"Two root Beers," she told the clerk, and while he was fixing them she lifted the glass top over a plate of sandwiches on the marble counter.

"Just look at those dried-up things! And they get 10 cents apiece for them!" she whispered to her niece. "I know people will pay $2 for the kind of food I'm going to serve! I'll bet you anything that inside of a year, Sally Jerome, I'll own an automobile and have a fine, fat bank account, besides! I'm going to make money in this wayside inn business—and if you have any brains you'd better come in with me!" She was stubborn, was Aunt Emily, and she hated to take "No" for an answer when "Yes" was what she wanted.

But "No" was what Sally said once more. She said it regretfully for, like her aunt, she had a love of adventure. The thing untried was the thing that lured her always.

"I can't," she said. "If I had a hundred dollars ahead, I would. But I haven't got it."

For an instant she thought of the $100 that Millie had coaxed her mother for new clothes.

"I might ask for that," she said to herself, but she knew it would be useless. Millie never gave up anything she wanted, once she got her soft, grasping hands upon it.

"All right. Give up everything for your family if you want to!" snapped Aunt Emily. "Now that Beau's married, there's no reason why your mother and Millie couldn't live on what they have for a while. Your mother gets her checks every now and then. She kept you all on them when you were little children."

"Yes, but she's turning them all over to Beau and Millie now!" Sally wanted to say, but she did not. She looked at her glass with downcast eyes and said nothing at all. No use to rattle the family skeletons before Aunt Emily.

"I carried all my family's burdens when I was your age," snapped Aunt Emily. "And look at me now—an old maid with barely enough to get along on! And I've made plenty of money in my day, Sally, I gave most of it away—to my family. They all had it from me—and not one of them ever paid me back or said 'thanks,' either!"

Sally raised her eyes then and looked at her.

"I expect to be an old maid myself, Aunt Em," she said. "And I expect to be a poor old maid—and I'm not worrying over it. Somebody's got to look after mother and I'm glad I'm the one to do it. And somebodys got to look after Millie until she's married!"

"It looks to me as if she were going to marry this Nye," observed the older woman. "And if she does, I certainly am going to be sorry for him."

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Her Terror of Owls

THERE was an imperiousness in Eleanor Lincoln's voice and gesture as she pushed Katherine's hands away which I would have dubbed flagrant rudeness had I not realized that the girl was hardly responsible for what she was saying or doing.

I knew, however, that it is in just such unguarded moments that the true nature of human beings often betrays itself, and I filed away my impression of her behavior among other indications of an arrogant bearing which I had noticed on her.

The struggle for composure which she was making was worthy of any one's admiration, however. Her swoon was scarcely a minute past when she was not only sitting erect, as she declared herself all right, but the next instant she made a decided effort to get upon her feet.

Katherine effectively thwarted that movement, however, by quickly stepping directly in front of her, so that the young girl was compelled to sink back upon the couch.

"You must not think of standing upon your feet so soon," the little nurse said authoritatively. "True, you were unconscios for only a minute or two, but a shock like that isn't to be trifled with. Please rest now, while I fix you up a restorative."

Miss Lincoln submitted quietly. She had regained control of herself and her contrite look at Katherine told me that she had realized the rudeness of which she had been guilty. But I could not help wondering whether her chagrin was genuine contrition or dismay because a well-fitting mask had slipped for an inadvertent moment.

"Please forgive me for my—rudeness," she said in the manner of a child repeating a well-conned lesson. "And I am so sorry to have annoyed you all this way. I hoped I had outgrown that silly, childish terror of mine, but I have not. I am sure, however, that it is because I have not heard an owl hoot in so long. Now that I realize I may hear one at any time I shall school myself to endure it."

I was glad that at that instant Katherine stepped in front of her, holding to her lips the restorative draught she had prepared. It gave me a chance to look at Lillian, who promptly lifted her eyebrows with an expression which I knew of old denoted scoffing disbelief. I answered her with a little nod of acquiescence in her opinion, for I, too, felt that the explanation Miss Lincoln was giving was an extremely lame one. The idea that a normally healthy girl, as she undoubtedly was, would faint at the sound of a boy's screech was altogether too far-fetched for my acceptance.

That the girl herself recognized our probable skepticism I was sure when, as soon as she had finished the draught Katherine held to her lips, she spoke again quickly, with an unconscious note of appeal in her voice.

"I was terribly frightened by an owl when I was a little child," she said. "It was a pet of one—of—my family, which suddenly went wild and—bit me. Fortunately there was some one at hand and I was not seriously hurt, but I was wild with terror. Later a mischievous cousin told me that whenever I heard an owl hoot it meant that the bird was coming to carry me away. Boy-like, he had sworn me to an oath of secrecy before telling me, so until I outgrew childhood I implicitly believed him and suffered agonies of terror whenever I heard an owl hoot. It grew to be such an obsession that I used to swoon whenever I heard one. Of course, when I grew older I fought against the weakness, and I thought I had overcome it. But the unexpected sound of that owl to-night completely upset me. I am so sorry."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

I was not hurt at all from falling on the tub, but the tub was, and my father had to pay for having a new bottom put in it, and when I was feeding my face this morning he said he would put a new bottom on me if I didn't watch my step hereafter. And he'd do it, too. That is the kind of a father he is.

I had to wait till they all got done eating before I could swipe anything to feed Jubilee. Then we went over to the brickyard and went in swimming in the mudhole. Not all of us went in, because it was like swimming in ice water, and before a fella got ducked the gooseflesh stuck out so far a fella could scrape it off with a stick. I bet if a fella went in swimming every day in the winter so that the gooseflesh don't have time to go down it would keep getting big and bigger until by the time winter was gone he would look like a porcupine and couldn't get his shirt or pants on. I bet the first of all porcupines started that way.

We played ball on the way to school. I was backing up and Niles was walking head first and we were playing catch and the rest of the bunch was in between jumping up and trying to catch the ball, and hollering things at us to make us drop it, and we are pretty good catchers, and they couldn't get us any other way so Banty snuck around behind me and got on his knees and when I backed up against him I sat down, but because I wasn't going fast I didn't set down on the other side of him but on top of him and I knocked the wind out of him, and he was mad about it and got a half a brick and walked along by the side of the road whilst I was playing ball, so that I didn't know whether I was going to catch the brick or the ball, and then he got behind me, and that made me nervouser and nervouser, and then just as I was going to throw the ball to Niles Banty threwed the half a brick to him, and Niles caught it for the ball and it almost broke three of his fingers, and he skun out after Banty.

I was going to hit Banty with the ball, so I wound myself up and turned loose a hot one with smoke on it and just then Niles got in the way and it soaked him below the belt, and he turned around and came back toardst me and he was mad, and just as he was going to hit me I jumped in and grabbed him, and then we rolled into the gutter, and he said he had enough, He had got all over being mad, which was a good thing for him. I went to bed early. My father said I had better because it would take quite a while to get the bed warm.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

Hot Breads for breakfast in 10 minutes!

SINCE I have learned to make muffins, Johnny Cakes and other things the day before and reheat them quickly in the morning, we have hot breads all the time. And no one realizes that they are not baked fresh every morning.

I wet them (just a "dash" under the cold water faucet), heat them thoroughly in a covered pan, removing the cover a minute before serving to be sure they are dry.

I used to think that because hot breads require so little shortening they could be made with any odds and ends of fat I happened to have in the house. But one day I made some muffins with Crisco and they were certainly the best I ever ate. Light, tender, with a wonderful flavor and appetizing smell. They were so much better than any I had made before that now I use Crisco for every hot bread I make, and I do get the most gratifying compliments on all my hot breads. They really could not be any better if made with the best, most expensive butter.

DELICIOUS PASTRY, CAKES AND FRIED FOODS, TOO

Crisco is by no means limited to making hot breads. I find that I can always depend on Crisco for flakier pie crusts, delicious cakes, dainty desserts—and for all frying.

Manhattan Muffins

When baked with Crisco, as light and dainty a muffin as you could imagine. For special occasions bake in tiny patty pans. Split each one, put in a piece of butter and serve at once. They make just one mouthful.

¼ cup Crisco — 1 cup milk
¼ cup sugar — 1¼ cups bread flour
1 egg (beaten) — ½ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream Crisco, sugar and salt together. Add eggs, then milk. Last baking powder and flour sifted together three times. Beat until smooth, bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 25 minutes. If ordinary muffin tins are used, this recipe will make 12 to 15 muffins.

Johnny Cake

A real New England recipe. If Crisco is used, this Johnny Cake will be light, tender and delicious.

½ cup Crisco — 1 cup thick sour milk
½ cup sugar — ½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt — 1 cup bread flour
1 egg (beaten) — ½ cup cornmeal
4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream Crisco, sugar and salt together. Add egg, then sour milk and soda beaten together. Last baking powder, flour and cornmeal sifted together three times. Beat until smooth and turn into Criscoed shallow pan. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 25 minutes.

Senator Nye Bids Fair To Jump Into Leadership of Insurgents

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Young Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, bids fair to gravitate into the leadership of the insurgent group in congress.

GERALD NYE

He isn't trying to gravitate there, he said in a statement he issued recently. Instead, he referred to Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska as the insurgents' natural leader. No doubt he WOULD accept Norris. So would the other insurgents. "Uncle George" IS their natural leader. However, he shows no signs of shouldering the responsibility.

Now, the insurgents need to be led. They can raise Cain in the senate next winter, and the succeeding winter, if their team works good. Otherwise they may flop, even with the chance that's offered them. The foxy old guys among the regulars, on both sides, are capable of combining against them and offsetting their balance of power unless they make the most of it.

• • •

SINCE the elder Senator La Follette died (in fact, for some time before that, while his health was failing) the senate insurgents have been considerably disorganized. Each individual insurgent has been as insurgent as ever he was, but, as a group, they've lacked punch.

For one thing, they were an insurgent or two shy (Smith W. Brookhart and Magnus Johnson) during most of the sixty-ninth congress, but, besides that, there was no insurgent-in-chief, and one was needed.

Now they start in the seventieth congress up to their full normal numerical strength, or maybe a vote better, with the big parties just teetering. By playing both ends against the middle, they can stir up the very mischief, but it will take generalship.

• • •

THE out-and-out "mavericks" (as Congressman Berger calls them) in the next senate will be Nye and Frazier of North Dakota, La Follette and Blaine of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, Brookhart of Iowa, and Shipstead of Minnesota.

Several other senators join them occasionally—but only occasionally.

Anyway, those seven are enough to kick up the worst senate jamboree Capitol's Hill's known in a coon's age, provided they do their kicking in harmony and rhythm, as they can (and only can) if they're well led.

• • •

LEADERSHIP? Gerald P. Nye sounded the clarion call for it.

Young Bob La Follette might be considered to have inherited it, but it doesn't fit him—not old enough, perhaps, and shy on physical stamina. "Uncle George" is the logical candidate, as Nye says, but he doesn't choose—too old, maybe, and tired. If either Frazier, Brookhart or Shipstead were a natural standard bearer, he'd have been at it already. Blaine's brand new—nobody knows him as a senator.

• • •

TO size him up, Nye, for a fact, suggests leadership.

He's young—35—next to Bob La Follette, the senate baby. But he's a hard-featured baby. He hasn't exactly a vicious expression, but he has a pugnacious one. He has pep, force, drive. His manner confident. He speaks right out.

And decisive!—about the most valuable quality in a leader. Oh my!

For instance, in that statement aforesaid, issued by him not long ago, he raises the question:

"What shall we do with our Mississippi flood problem?"

Like a shot, back comes the answer: "Solve it, and spend the rest of the money retiring the national debt."

Nothing left to the imagination in that.

···You're there with a Crosley"

The radio world takes off its hat to the greatest radio value it ever saw. The 6-tube Bandbox $55

To Crosley resources, experience, leadership and mass manufacturing methods comes the big factor that leads to paramount achievement—license to use the best of radio patents—license to work with and to take full advantage of the research and study of the greatest of their kind—The Radio Corporation of America, The General Electric Co., The Westinghouse Co., The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and The Hazeltine and Latour Corporations.

Wonder not then that this "Bandbox" is an amazing radio—and a phenomenal value.

NEUTRODYNE

Such resources at his command have resulted in the greatest Crosley triumph—a 6 tube receiver with all elements Completely Shielded—absolutely Balanced in its radio frequency stages and including features and refinements at a price of $55, which are the chief talking points of sets twice its price and more.

This Bandbox is totally shielded. Copper shields cover coils, cadmium-plated steel covers the condensers. Wiring is completely shielded from both. The Bandbox is completely balanced. It is a genuine neutrodyne.

The Bandbox is equipped with Acuminators—secondary adjustments to be used only on weak, distant signals and when cruising for far-a-way stations that ordinary one dial sets miss entirely. The "Bandbox" possesses a volume control by which strong local dancing volume can be reduced to a whisper without distortion or detuning.

The Bandbox operates with a single tuning knob which turns an illuminated dial. This feature for shadowy corners is greatly appreciated.

The Bandbox is easily installed in console cabinets being so designed that a few screws removed from the escutcheon and the bottom releases chassis from the outside metal case. See it at Crosley dealers now!

CAROL IS NOT TO INTERFERE

That Is, If Heritage of His Son, Michael, Isn't Molested

(Copyright, 1927, by I. N. S.)

Paris, Oct. 13.—The only thing which would cause me to interfere in Roumanian affairs would be to protect the heritage of my son, Michael,—a thing that any father would do."

This statement was made to International News Service by former Crown Prince Carol of Roumania.

Carol denied reports reaching Berlin from Bucharest that he is seeking to gain the Roumanian throne at the expense of his six-year-old son, King Michael.

The ex-crown prince spoke freely of his plans, saying he would never make any move which would disturb the peace of his native land. He said he intends to bring suit against several Roumanian newspapers because they printed improper translations of articles written by Magda Helen Lupescu, the titian-haired beauty with whom Carol has formed an alliance.

To Sue Papers

Carol said he believed his announced intention to sue the newspapers had given rise to the story that he had filed suit to try to break the will of his father, the late King Ferdinand.

(A recent cablegram from Bucharest reported that Carol had filed suit in the supreme court to contest his father's will and that owing to his being in France a trustee had been appointed to safeguard his interests.)

The former crown prince is greatly agitated over the manner in which the Lupescu articles were translated, declaring that the papers involved had printed libelous matter.

"I am informed that some of these stories nearly caused a revolution in my country," continued Carol. "Therefore it is my duty to show up these newspapers in the courts. It is the only way to correct the error and to prevent further harm."

Satisfied With Will

Carol said he is quite satisfied with his father's will, even speaking of the Codicil which was added as the last words of Ferdinand spoken on his death bed.

"This codicil," added Carol, "said it was best that I should never return to Roumania or ever do anything to disturb the peace of my country. Naturally I would never do anything like that.

"I am only too willing to keep away from Roumania if it is best for my country."

Hints of a possible estrangement between Carol and his mother, Queen Marie, brought a strong protest from the prince.

"My mother communicates with me regularly," said Carol. "In fact, we are closer since my father's death than ever before."

QUEEN MARIE COMING TO U. S.

Berlin, Oct. 13.—Queen Marie of Roumania, plans to visit the United States next spring to attempt to obtain a big loan from a group of New York bankers, it was learned from Roumanian sources today.

Officially the queen is returning to America "to see the part of the country she missed on her first visit, which was cut short by the serious illness of King Ferdinand.

Unofficially Marie will attempt to increase her own political prestige through negotiation of a loan which would be used to stabilize Roumanian currency.

Roads Need Money

Roumanian railroads, being in a poor state, need money. There are other uses which could eat up $25,000,000 or so.

If she's successful in getting a loan, which now seems doubtful owing to the attitude of the United States state department toward loans for "non-productive" purposes, she has an ambitious scheme for building a new capital city in Transylvania which would rival Paris or Berlin.

Marie feels that Greater Roumania, which has expanded greatly since the war, has outgrown Bucharest and needs a larger and more imposing city as its capital.

Plans Gay Capital

The queen wants to make the new capital a gay and lively place which will attract tourists from other parts of the world. Construction of a new capital city would cost about $200,000,000 but despite the immensity of the sum Marie is said to be hopeful.

Queen Marie is said to feel that if she is able to negotiate a great loan, and bring about a matrimonial alliance between her daughter Ilena and Boris, the bachelor king of Bulgaria, her prestige will be so great at home that no one would dare to cross her and she would be virtual ruler of her country.

Reporter Gets "Lowdown" on John D.'s Golf

MILLIONAIRE, 88, HAS STEADY SWING AND NEVER LOSES HIS TEMPER

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(Copyright 1927 by I. N. S.)

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 13—John D. Rockefeller, at 88, is hitting a long ball off the tee for a man of his age but, hang it, he's developed a hook!

It may be that my presence, as a gallery of one, trailing his foursome over his expansive Pocantico Hills course today threw him off his game but he certainly wasn't straight down the fairway as I had often read was his specialty.

Physically the richest man in the world looked great. His face was a ruddy tan, his step elastic. He wore thick-lensed, yellow-tinted glasses, gray flat-topped cap, gray jacket over a sweater, long pants and rubbers over his shoes. I came upon the foursome at the sixth green, just as the gray-haired multi-millionaire was sinking a six-foot putt. I had scaled a 20-foot stone wall, with its annoying barbed-wire entanglements, and arrived at the green just as the ball clicked into the cup.

Has Steady Swing

"Not bad," commented Mr. Rockefeller.

It was his honor on the next hole. "Augustine," a strapping, man-caddy, handed him a driver, the face of it chalked.

Mr. Rockefeller took his stance, getting well back of the ball. He patted his feet a bit. As he lifted his driver on the back swing, his hands, and his club as well, seemed to tremble but when he reached the top of the swing he became very steady and brought the club down swiftly with a good follow through.

Biff! —

Swish! He hooked it, to the left, and high over the trees. Did he curse? No. He never does, his friends who play with him, told me. His comment was a philosophical "such is golf."

His lie for his second shot was good. In fact, you can't get a really bad lie on the course, for it has no rough. Trees are the only real hazards, except for the water hole on the fourth.

Copyright, 1926, by Fotograms, N. Y.

"Augustine" handed John D. a brassie. He peered at the pin, 175 yards away, took his stance and shot. Another hook! He called for another ball, played the ball over. It was straighter, but still had a slight hook. He had the caddy drop another ball and this time drove it straight and almost to the green.

He's Feeling Good

Trudging to where his original second shot lay, Mr. Rockefeller called for a jigger and chipped neatly, about 75 yards, to the pin, 12 feet from the hole. The fourth shot, a putt, slid a foot past the cup and he was down in five.

"Even fives—that's about how he plays this course," one of the foursome told me.

On the ninth green, after all four had holed out, Mr. Rockefeller had each put two balls at the far edge of the green and putt for the hole. He won the special putting match, sinking his two balls in six putts. He always finished a match with a special putting duel of this kind.

Mr. Rockefeller told International News Service he was "feeling good." Asked how his game was, he pointed to his companions and smilingly said, "ask these gentlemen." They indicated it was excellent.

Asked if he intended to play thirty-six holes, as reported, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"No, I never play more than nine holes."

I visited some of Mr. Rockefeller's neighbors and talked with a few of his golfing comrades and found that he is exceedingly liked in Pocantico Hills and Tarrytown.

Pastor Praises Him

Rev. Aloysious Dineen, pastor of the Church of Magdalene, a Catholic, spoke warmly of the rich old gentleman who lives in semi-seclusion in his $3,000,000 mansion set in among the beautiful surroundings of his 6,000 acre estate. The priest said Mr. Rockefeller still makes it a habit to give away brand new dimes. He has given away some 20,000 shining dimes and nickels to men, women and children, not merely as souvenirs, but to inculcate the principles of saving and thrift, and to establish warmer personal relations. People fashion amulets and watch charms of these gifts and many have told him that his small gift has turned their thoughts toward thrift.

"Save your money, and you won't regret it," Rockefeller recently told 35 boys who came to Pocantico Hills from New York City as the guests of Father Dineen.

Never Loses Temper

Mr. Rockefeller arises each morning at 7, takes a stroll through his estate, has breakfast; dictates letters and reads his mail after breakfast; goes on the links for nine holes promptly at 10 each morning, except Sunday; has luncheon at one; takes an automobile drive in the afternoon; has dinner at 6 and reads during the evening, retiring about 9 p. m.

A prominent Tarrytown business man, who plays golf with Rockefeller frequently, told the writer he never loses his temper and never bets. Occasionally when he loses, he hands the victor a new dime. Time was when Mr. Rockefeller wouldn't shoot the water hole, No. 4, because of the 120-yard carry, but he does it now.

Woman Admires Him

Mr. Rockefeller hasn't a warmer admirer within miles than his nearest neighbor, Mrs. Margaret Moore a widow, who runs a store that used to be a Main-st saloon in Pocantico Hills.

"He's a fine man, and a kind man," she said. "He does many kind things that nobody knows about. I do, for I have been right here since 1891. And, it isn't always dimes he gives away either. Who built the Union Church of Pocantico Hills, that Mr. Rockefeller goes to? He did! And who bought those beautiful chimes you're now hearing? Mr. Rockefeller. I'll tell you, we'll miss that fine man when he's gone."

RHEUMATISM

may be relieved by rational treatment—
it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it when a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

NERVOUSNESS KEPT THIS LADY A HEALTH-WRECK

Stomach Indigestion Miserable; Says Konjola Gave Her Amazing Relief.

"Ofttimes, nervousness and stomach troubles go hand in hand," said The Konjola Man yesterday at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where crowds of men and women are now calling daily to find out about this celebrated Konjola medicine.

MRS. E. E. LANDON

"The nervous person may not be aware of stomach trouble, but very often the stomach is disordered, and at times it is the real seat of this terrible nervousness," continued the Konjola Man. "A nervous person wakes in the morning tired and exhausted. As the day advances his strength increases and at bedtime the sufferer is usually at his best, while some persons are just a bundle of nerves all the time—the least excitement nearly drives them frantic. As a rule, constipation, headaches, melancholia, or blues, are very common, and the sufferer seems to look only on the dark side of life—these things make nervousness a dreaded ailment."

This Konjola, which The Konjola Man is introducing in Marion, has given such amazing relief in so many cases of nervous indigestion and stomach troubles, that it is declared that no suffering person can afford not to try it. Many people say Konjola seems to go at once to the very source of such misery. For instance, just a few days ago, Mrs. E. E. Landon, living on East Street, Prospect, Ohio (near Marion), made the following statement in which she told of the relief she derived by taking Konjola:

"I just feel fine now, and I think Konjola is wonderful," said Mrs. Landon. "I suffered terribly with nervousness and stomach trouble. In fact, it made little difference what I ate. I was sure to be in agony from indigestion. I would bloat up with gas, and it was almost impossible for me to sleep at nights, due to shattered nerves. I used to feel pretty bad every morning, but now, your Konjola has benefited me so much that every morning I feel fit and fine. This is because I sleep so well. And with my nervousness and indigestion gone, I just feel like I have a new hold on life. As I said, I think Konjola is wonderful, and I am glad to recommend it to help others afflicted like I was."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the most grateful and enthusiastic crowds at the store of like remedy. Konjola is sold here by all of the leading druggists in every town of this section.—Adv.

The Story of

ISALY MILK

In our previous ads this week, we tried in our humble way to explain why Dairy Products should be liberally used on the table, and in cooking, so now we believe it only proper to give you the Story of Our Milk, the sources that our Dairy Products are derived from.

WE KNOW THAT EVERY MOTHER AND EACH CUSTOMER IS INTERESTED IN KNOWING HOW THE MILK THAT THEY DRINK IS HANDLED

Our milk is collected early each morning, from the farms surrounding Marion, by a fleet of trucks. All milk must be delivered to the dairy by 9:30 a. m.

In the days gone by we have maintained our own inspection of our dairy farms and producers, very little was said about equipment, and we have always insisted on the "3—C milk," Clean, Cool and Covered, but for the past year and a half the City Milk Inspector has been gradually adding to this the need of modern equipment and better conditions on the dairy farm.

As the milk is delivered to our dairy it is inspected by a competent employe, who has had two courses in the O. S. U. for this purpose. All milk not coming up to standard is rejected, it is then weighed and samples taken out for butter fat tests and bacteria count.

Next the milk is pasteurized as a safeguard, it is elevated into bright tinned copper vat pasteurizers, where it is heated to 145 degrees Fahrenheit and held at that temperature for 30 minutes. Large recording thermometers are used, which records the temperature and time held, these records are turned over to the City Inspector on his regular visits to our plant.

Care is used at this point to standardize the milk as to butter fat, milk from different herds is arranged so as to enable us to put out a milk testing practically the same in butter fat or richness each day. This we find a great help in infant feeding.

The milk is now allowed to flow by gravity through a clarifier or filter, consisting of absorbent cotton discs which removes the finest sediment, and then it flows down over a large cooler, where it is cooled to a temperature of about 40 degrees. It is now ready for the bottle filler, which is a rotary machine of white enameled iron, which fills and caps 60 quart bottles per minute. The filler or the caps are never touched by human hands while the machine is operating.

The bottle milk is now ready for the refrigerators, where it is kept to a 40 degree temperature, until the milk is delivered to your door-step.

Let us not neglect the washing and sterilizing of the milk bottles. All our bottles are washed by a large high pressure bottle washer, which forces two strong jets of a hot alkali solution into the inverted bottles, then two hot soda solutions, next a hot fresh water rinse and then a steam bath, where a temperature of about 200 degrees is maintained, finally a cool, sterilized fresh water rinse, the bottles are then inspected and sent to the filler.

Every effort is made to see that all the bottles are perfectly washed and sterilized, should bottles come back to us that have had foreign product in them, such as vinegar, paint, oil or other matter, or where the milk has been allowed to stand in them until it corrodes, these bottles are immediately broken, should it be that one is missed and it goes to the filler, after its journey through the washer, it has been rendered perfectly sterile, but would have the ugly lines left in by the foreign product.

Our perfectly sterile bottles and modern equipment accounts largely for our remarkably low bacteria count. Last year our average count was 18,000.

Professor Drain of the Ohio State University in an address before the Medical Society last June, said that one of Marion's milk plants is to be complimented on having a State record of sending seven men employes to take one or more courses in Dairying. We feel proud of maintaining this interest and efficiency among our employees.

The Health of Our Employees

No employee is allowed to work at our plant unless he is in perfect health, and they are required to pass a medical examination and given a health certificate twice each year, by the city health physician.

ADVICE TO AID FLOOD PROBLEM

Secretary Dwight F. Davis Says Government Wants Best Solution

Columbus, Oct. 13 — Three hundred members of the American Society of Civil Engineers resumed their discussions of the Mississippi River flood control problem today, following assurance given them by secretary of War Dwight F. Davis that the government intends to be guided in its efforts to solve the situation by the best technical engineering advice obtainable.

Secretary Davis spoke at the annual banquet last night coming here from Dayton, where he participated in the dedication of a new army flying field yesterday.

Most Important Problem

Characterizing the Mississippi flood control task as the "most important before the war department today," Davis said that the plan of the future for controlling the surplus water from the river must be "sound in its engineering and sound in its economics." He asserted that every approved method would be carefully studied, and those which meet the test of merit would be incorporated in the recommendations of the administration to the congress.

"The chief of engineers and his staff are consolidating weighing, and coordinating the results submitted by the various boards and you may rest assured that all means suggested for flood control are being studied with an open mind, and that the best solution will be recommended without prejudice," Davis promised.

Former criticisms of "pork barrel" tactics in connection with governmental rivers and harbors works are no longer applicable, the secretary said, declaring his conviction that "no expenditure of government founds is now safeguarded so carefully as in the case of rivers and harbors improvements."

The waterways section of the convention today continued the discussion, with Col. C. W. Kutz of the army corps of engineers reviewing the work of the Mississippi River commission. Other papers were scheduled for presentation during the day by distinguished experts, dealing with forestation, reservoirs, levees, spillways, and other methods of flood control, while Marcel Garsaud, general manager of the board of port commissioners, New Orleans, was to sum up the Mississippi problem from the standpoint of the crescent city, where extensive levee works prevented disaster during the 1927 flood.

DISCOVERY DAY IS OBSERVED BY LODGE

Knights of Columbus Hosts to 150 at Special Program and Entertainment

One of the outstanding events of Columbus Day observance in Marion took place last night at the Knights of Columbus hall on E. Center-st, where approximately 150 guests enjoyed a special program of entertainment planned for the occasion.

The affair was sponsored by Marion Council, No. 671, Knights of Columbus, and Our Lady of Victory Circle, Daughters of Isabella.

Euchre and bridge contests made up the first part of the program, followed by music and other entertainment features.

Mrs. Michael Moran and George Glass won first honors in euchre and consolation awards went to Mrs. Frank Johnson and Thomas Andrews. Awards in the bridge contests were won by Marion Cusic and Miss Pauline Staudenmaier.

Entertainment following cards included vocal solos by Mrs. Thomas Kerrigan with piano accompaniment by Miss Lucille Conarty; piano selections by Miss Florence Ruffing, violin numbers by Miss Jennie Farruggio with Miss Juanita Miller as accompanist, and readings by Miss Margaret Johnson.

A committee directed by Mrs. J. W. Rinehart, president of the Daughters of Isabella, had charge of arrangements for that organization and the Knights of Columbus committee consisted of Charles McDonough, C. B. Silva and R. P. Murphy.

KENTON TEAM TO MEET ADA

Return Match Will Be Played Nov. 18; Stiff Practices Arranged

Kenton, Oct. 13 — One of the outstanding sport classics of Kenton will be staged at Athletic Field Friday afternoon when the Kenton High school football team opposes the Ada club in the last of two contests this season. The second tilt will be played in Ada, Nov. 18.

Both teams have been put through stiff practices the past week in anticipation of the game and the respective coaches today expressed confidence that their men would win.

While Kenton defeated Ada in the two games last year, sportsmen this season are not so confident that the locals will have such easy sledding. Kenton lost many of her veteran men by graduation and in proportion a smaller number was dropped from the College town line-up.

Ada, too, has been winning all of her games this fall while the Red and White gridders have already lost one.

Preceding their leaving Ada Friday, the visiting club will be given a rousing pep meeting by students of the school. Coach Bill Thieson plans to use the following men in his Ada lineup: John Allen, Harry Greenawalt, John Stutes, Ted Arnold, Miller Brown, Miller Ward, Bill Campbell, Paul Routson, Robert Cole, Russell Long, Clifton Harding, Charles Anspach, Sanford Wright, Robert Wallick and Dick Mahl.

CHARITY FAIR PLANS COMPLETED AT MEET

Eagles To Conduct Annual Event First Week in November

Buckeye Aerie, No. 337, Fraternal Order of Eagles, completed arrangements at its regular weekly meeting last night for the annual indoor charity fair to be held Oct. 31 to Nov. 5, inclusive.

The fair, which is to take place in the Eagles' quarters on W. Center-st, is intended to raise funds for relief of the city's poor during the coming year.

The lodge also unanimously endorsed plans for the annual Red Cross roll call campaign and voted to assist in helping canvass the city for contributions. The Eagles will have charge of the house-to-house canvass in one of the city's six wards, other lodges being assigned to the remaining wards.

OBREGON ASKS FOR BETTER RELATIONS

Mexican General Hopes for Finer Understanding with United States

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, Oct. 13 — Gen. Alvaro Obregon, Mexican presidential candidate in an exclusive interview with international News Service here today sounded an appeal for a better understanding between the people of the United States and Mexico.

"For the American people I have only a message of sympathy expressing my desires for a better understanding with the people of Mexico as the future progress of both republics is closely linked," General Obregon said. General Obregon summarized the success of the federal government in stamping out the recent revolution as follows:

"The success of the federal government has been definite, the revolt headed by Generals Serrano and Gomez has been put down in eight days. The public did not second the movement of Generals Serrano and Gomez, because they were satisfied with the policy of government."

Continuance of the policies of the Calles administration were advocated by General Obregon, who characterized the general situation of the entire republic as normal.

NO APPLICATION YET MADE TO COMMISSION

Report Abroad of Doherty & Co. Ohio Gas Properties Sale

Columbus, Oct. 13—Officials at the offices of the state utilities commission here this afternoon stated that no application had been received for approval of purchase by the Columbia Gas & Electric Co. of the gas properties in Ohio of the Ohio Public Service Co., headquarters at Cleveland, part of the H. L. Doherty interests a transaction unofficially announced in New York today.

Records of the utilities commission showed that these properties were valued at approximately $20,000,000. The Ohio Public Service Co., it was disclosed, served about 24,000 gas consumers, retail and wholesale, in Ohio last year, mostly in northern Ohio.

Its wholesale trade, it was stated, included service to the Logan, West Ohio, East Ohio, Ada and Pittsfield Gas Companies, West Lafayette Oil & Gas Co., Killbuck & Millersburg Oil & Gas Co., and the Ohio Fuel Supply Co.

CANNED HEAT PARTY RAIDED

Nine Men Taken into Custody in Railroad Yards by Police

Police at 5 o'clock yesterday morning took uninvited guests at a second party being given by nine members of the fraternity in the Big Four stock yards. When the police arrived two of the party had gone for a fresh supply of the solidified liquor, and the remaining seven were in the bull pen at the yards with all of the gates carefully closed.

Elmer Lindsay, of Sandusky, who was an out-of-town guest at the party and who was one of the two who had gone for a fresh supply, was later arrested in the Erie yards by Erie police on a charge of intoxication. Elmer also paid a fine of $10 and costs in municipal court this morning, it being his fifth appearance before Judge Martin on a similar charge.

Taken to Station

Seven of the party with five cans of the solidified liquor, were escorted to police headquarters where they were booked as Walter Scott, 67, Kenton-av; Dutch Keis, Farming-st; Pete Brady, no address; Jimmie Cantwell, 138 Farming-st; R. T. Hickman, 332 N. Prospect-st; Butch Hathaway, no address, and Carl Lytle, Scranton-av.

They drew fines in proportion to the number of times they had appeared in court on a similar charge. Scott and Keis drew fines of $10 and costs, Cantwell and Hathaway were fined $20 and costs, Pete Brady drew a fine of $25 and costs, it being his third appearance, while Hickman was fined $40 and costs. Lytle drew the highest fine of $35 and costs, it being his sixth appearance in court. Only Lindsay paid. The rest were taken to jail.

GRIEF STANDS OVER THREE IN MEXICO

Tragic Figures Are Calles, De La Huerta and General Obregon's Wife

Los Angeles, Oct. 13—Grief has laid a heavy hand upon three tragic figures in the Mexican revolutionary drama.

The stoic countenance of President Elias Plutarco Calles, as he sits in his lonely castle at Chapultepec masks his deep sorrow for his loss of a beloved wife, while his bitter political foe, Adolfo De La Huerta, former president of Mexico, gazes out of the window of a vine covered bungalow in Hollywood and with clenched fists swears vengeance on the "assassins" who "murdered" his brother.

The third person whose happiness has been swept away by the maelstrom of the revolution is a woman.

Senora Maria Tapia De Obregon, wife of the former Mexican president and mother of six children, besides her anxiety for her husband's safety in their country's crisis, is stricken with grief over the death of a cousin at the hands of a firing squad.

Revolution in Old Mexico is no respecter of family ties. The cousin, whose death is being mourned by Senora Obregon, was Gen. Francisco Serrano, whose bosom friendship for her husband was severed when he broke with the Calles regime and cast his lot with other leaders of the revolutionary movement.

The stork also is hovering over the red brick home in the little Mexican border town of Nogales, Sonora, where Senora Obregon today had been rejoined by her husband who arrived from the Mexican capital yesterday to be with the family.

SEE REED'S SPEECH AS NOMINATION BID

Capital Believes "Corrupt Government" To Be Major Democratic Issue

Washington, Oct. 13 - The capital today accepted Sen. James A. Reed's Sedalia speech as an open bid for the Democratic presidential nomination upon a well-defined platform.

By his criticisms of the last two Republican administrations, Reed served notice that the Democrats will make "corrupt government" a capital issue in the next campaign.

Reports here indicate that Reed will have a sizeable delegation from the middle west in the 1928 convention. He is believed assured of Missouri and is expected to pick up scattering votes in nearby states.

Because of his political witness Reed has been considered all along as a possible legatee of the strength of Al Smith should the New York governor fail to obtain the Democratic nomination. Some Democrats who are opposed to Smith said they would accept Reed despite his prohibition views, because he is from the west.

Influential Democratic leaders believe that the party must have a combination of the west and south if it is to be successful against the Republican candidate. In this scheme of things Reed fits in well, for he is unquestionably the outstanding potential Democratic candidate from the west. Reed also has influential backing the south.

SHERIFF SEEKS FARM PROWLER

Wyandot County Officials Spend Chilly Night Waiting for Quarry

Upper Sandusky, Oct. 13 - Sheriff Harry Stansberry and Deputy Raymond Stansberry were back in their offices this morning after having spent a chilly night lying in wait for a prowler that failed to prowl.

The two officials answered a call to the farm of John Pesaryk, two miles west of here last night. Pesaryk stated that his place was being paid a visit by a person believed to be a recently discharged farm hand on the Pesaryk farm. His former employer believes that the man is making attempts to make good threats made at the time of his dismissal.

Among the first demonstrations that Pesaryk endeavors to attach to the former farm hand occurred last Saturday when the Pesaryk family returned home to find several dishes broken. The next incident occurred Tuesday night, Pesaryk says, when the home was entered and clothing damaged. Rosa Pesaryk, 15, awoke during the night Tuesday to find herself clutching a butcher knife. She had several scratches on her neck. On the door of the Pesaryk home was a note purported to have been written by the unidentified intruder. Its contents expressed distaste for Pesaryk in general.

Mrs. Pesaryk contends that she saw the former farm hand last night in a cornfield near the house and that he started yelling at her. The officials were then summoned.

MAYOR HAZEN URGES CROWD AT CONCERT

U. S. Navy Band To Be Brought Here By Kadgar Grotto, Oct. 18

In a formal statement issued by Mayor Earl M. Hazen today, all citizens of Marion, young and old, are urged to take advantage of the opportunity to hear the U. S. Navy Band when it appears here in two concerts on Oct. 18 under auspices of Kadgar Grotto, local Masonic organization.

In taking this action, the mayor joined with other public officials in voicing words of praise for the band and in congratulating Kadgar Grotto for bringing the famous musical organization to Marion.

Similar communications were sent to the grotto recently by United States Senator Frank B. Willis and Congressman Brooks Fletcher.

Referring to the band as "one of the greatest musical attractions of our nation," and calling attention to the fact that it was a favorite with the late President Harding and accompanied him on the trip which was brought to a tragic close by his death, the mayor says:

"We would suggest, especially to the young, that they avail themselves of this privileged opportunity. All lovers of music will want to hear this band. No one in our section of the state may ever again be able to enjoy a treat such as this."

Kadgar Grotto officers report that the advance sale of tickets forecasts unusually large attendance at both concerts, the afternoon and evening of Oct. 18. The programs will be given at Chautauqua pavilion, where ample seating accommodations will be provided for the crowds.

RENDER SAYS REAL ISSUE CAMOUFLAGED

State Senator Debates Woman Legislator on Marshall Bill

Cleveland, Oct. 13—Charges that the Anti-Saloon League, in supporting Ohio's Marshall justice of the peace bill, is "camouflaging the real issue," were made by State Senator George Bender, sponsor of a referendum on the bill, in a debate with Councilwoman Helen H. Green before the Women's Civic Association here last night.

"If Ohio voters down the Marshall Bill through George Bender's referendum, the world will say Ohio has repudiated prohibition," Mrs. Green declared.

Senator Bender, in answer stated that "the nation is permanently dry, and I'm just as strong for prohibition as I ever was, but I want honest prohibition.

"The Anti-Saloon League never has given the people a true history of the Marshall Bill. When the old system of fee charging squires and mayors was at its worst, the league defended these methods in the courts. It defended them in the churches and in the public press. It hoodwinked the people.

"It cannot be repeated too often that people who want decent enforcement of law, including the prohibition law, who want to do away with the grafting type of justice of the peace and mayor and the raiding constable, should vote "no" on the Marshall Bill on Nov. 8."

Walking Comfortably in the Height of Fashion

SCIENCE has found that Comfort lies at the bottom of the foot. This much MATRIX shoes have taken from science, and that is all. Style from then on is the guiding hand in producing this shoe.

While MATRIX Shoes are perhaps the most scientific shoes made, there is nothing scientific-looking about them. They are moulded at the factory so that the built-in innersoles fit perfectly the bottom of the foot. This does away with such foot discomforts as the agony of breaking in new shoes, fallen arches, and most all the other unpleasant foot ills brought on by improper footwear.

Because the comfort is built into the bottom of the MATRIX Shoe, there is nothing to detract from the stylish outward appearance—nothing of the orthopedic look about it. There is a fashionable MATRIX Shoe for every costume and every occasion. In MATRIX Shoes, one may walk in absolute comfort with the knowledge that one's feet are adorned in the Height of Style.

Red and Black Gridders Scrimmage for Ashland Game

Team Shows Up Good in Workout With Reserves; Ashland May Shift Attack

Harding To Take Second Road Trip of Year; Coach Boyd May Shift Attack; Will Be Only League Game This Week-End

BY TOM BUCHANAN
Sports Editor of The Star

The Red and Black gridders scrimmaged last night. And when it was all over they knew they had been in football practice. Coach Boiyer doesn't expect the game with Ashland to be any pink tea affair and as a result is giving the boys a day or no of real stiff work in preparation for the fray.

The varsity showed up well against the second stringers and was able to hold them scoreless. Coach Boiyer used the entire varsity squad in the scrimmage. Garrett, right half, who has been taking it easy this week to rest an ankle that is rather the worse for the wear it received last Saturday was in the scrimmage. Garrett will be able to start the game with Ashland.

Stafford who has been showing some real line plunging ability so far this season found the opposing line a lot easier than some he has been up against. He proceeded to chalk up some nice gains on center and off tackle plays.

Only League Game

The Harding-Ashland game Saturday will be the only league game in the N. C. O. conference this weekend, other teams having scheduled non-conference games. As a result Ashland or Harding will be the only teams to lose their present standings.

Ashland had a free Saturday last week and was thankful for it as it gave the team a chance to recover from injuries that have been bothering Coach Boyd. There are still some injuries however, that will likely not be healed by Saturday. Fisher has a bad knee, Nochols is on the hospital squad with an injured shoulder, Houck, a second string quarterback, is unable to play on account of a bad side, and Vic Doerrer has a splintered leg.

Coach Boyd of the Ashland crew is spending his evenings this week building up a defense that he hopes will stop the line plunges of Stafford and McAninch. The biggest and hardest hitting men the coach could find, have been sent smashing at the line and, according to word from the northern school, the big ones have been stopped.

May Shift Attack

Starting the season with four running backs Coach Boyd may shift his attack to plunging. This he will probably do Saturday. But after Bish and Corbin from Findlay last Saturday the Red and Black will not be without experience with plunking at the line.

Coach Boyd will probably depend on three men to carry the ball with the extra halfback used as a blocker and to run interference. Paxton will probably get the call to carry the ball on the majority of occasions for Ashland as he has been developing into a hard hitting full back in the last week or so.

As for other schools in the conference Mansfield and Bucyrus look like championship contenders. With a 33 to 7 victory over Galion last Saturday Mansfield looks like a real threat. The best Harding could do with Galion was a 13 to 0 shutout. Galion was able to score on Mansfield, a thing the team couldn't do against Harding, but it showed potential strength.

The Mansfield coach is using an intricate scouting system and results seem to be proving its value. The Harding-Findlay game last Saturday was counted for Mansfield's benefit, all of which will necessitate the digging up of some new plays before the Red and Black meets the Big Red.

While the Bucyrus victory over Delaware might have looked good in Monday's paper, it was costly. The hospital squad now contains nearly all the first stringers that saw much action against Delaware. Bucyrus will be idle over the weekend.

BOXING COMMISSION MOVES TO BOYCOTT RING TITLE HOLDER

Sammy Mandell To Lose Crown Unless He Meets Fighter of Public Choice

New York, Oct. 13—The proposed ousting of Sammy Mandell as lightweight champion is the first move made by the National Boxing Association to boycott a title-holder.

If the association places Mandell on the ineligible list he will be unable to ply his profession in something like 15 states where boxing is legalized. Not until he relinquishes the championship voluntarily or defends it against a challenger selected by public demand will Sammy be permitted to operate in any of the rich pay-dirt sections.

Case Up Next Week

Mandell's case comes up for action at the annual meeting of the National Boxing Association in Cleveland next week.

Thomas Donahue, president of the association, is the boxing commissioner of Connecticut. Several weeks ago he wrote Mandell urging him to put his title into competition with the winner of a bout between Sid Terris and Kid Kaplan. Since Eddie Kane, Mandell's manager, has made no reply to this request, Donahue intends to proceed with the boycott.

Donahue will suggest that Mandell be declared null and void and that Kaplan and Terris fight 15 rounds for the title. Terris and Kaplan, the former featherweight king, stand out as the logical rivals.

JACK DELANEY FAVORED TO WIN FROM RENAULT

New York, Oct. 13—Jack Delaney was a 2 to 1 favorite today to defeat Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, in their ten round bout here tomorrow night. The winner will be entered in Promoter Tex Rickard's elimination tournament.

Half Dozen Football Teams Leave for Saturday Battle Grounds; Strong Squads Play

"Tiny" Lewis, Northwestern Halfback, Left in Evanston Hospital with Pneumonia; Notre Dame "Doped" To Win from Navy at Annapolis

CHICAGO, Oct. 13—Half a dozen powerful midwest football machines shoved off today for the Saturday battle grounds.

Northwestern entrained for Columbus to play Ohio State; Michigan left for Madison to meet Wisconsin; Minnesota headed toward Bloomington for the fray with Indiana and Purdue moved over from LaFayette to engage Chicago at Stagg Field.

Iowa State journeyed to Urbana for the clash with Illinois. The Irish threat, Notre Dame and Knute Rockne, rambled off to battle Navy at Baltimore.

Although the spotlight will center on the Municipal Stadium in America's oyster city, Baltimore, a wandering ray will flicker over the Stadium pillars at Columbus and Chicago. The game here, in view of Purdue's victory over Harvard, will be watched with especial interest.

Northwestern is a prime favorite to roll up Ohio, in spite of the fact that Tiny Lewis, Purple fullback was left at an Evanston hospital to combat pneumonia. A victory for Northwestern will be a long stride toward the coveted conference championship.

Illinois encounters a strong, well balanced outfit in Iowa State. Minnesota should come through over Indiana. Wisconsin and Michigan line up about even. Notre Dame looks better than Navy.

RELEASE PLAYERS

Zach Wheat and Jacobson Let Go by Philly Athletics

Philadelphia, Oct. 13—Zach Wheat and "Baby Doll" Jacobson, veterans, handed unconditional releases by the Philadelphia Athletics today were looking for new outfield pastures in which to roam next season. It was believed that Wheat would be snapped up quickly by some big league club, as he batted .325 during the past season.

Wheat was signed by the Athletics following his release by Brooklyn, and received $15,000 for his work in 1927. Jacobson was obtained from the Boston Red Sox by waiver.

A motor boat capable of attaining a speed of eighty-seven miles an hour has been designed by M. Bugatti, the famous French designer of racing craft. In his new boat he hopes to travel from Brest to New York in forty hours.

Ohio State University, Northwestern University and University of Minnesota are the early season favorites of many of the football experts to win the "Big Ten" championship this season.

STATE LOOKS FOR HARD GAME

OHIO WESLEYAN TO APPEAR WITH NEW MODEL SATURDAY

Coach Gauthier Overhauls Old Machine; To Play Marshall at Delaware

Delaware, Oct. 13—An improved and rebuilt model of Ohio Wesleyan's 1927 football machine will make its appearance here Friday when it is given its first test against the Marshall College eleven of Huntington, W. Va.

The original 1927 Battling Bish model started missing zoom after it was completed as was evidenced by the fact that it overcame Wilmington by a bare one-point margin 20 to 19. The original machine kept right on missing throughout the 33 to 0 game with Michigan and became badly over-heated Against Miami last Saturday it burned out a bearing and stalled.

New Machine

Coach George Gauthier who got an engineer's training at Michigan State College some 15 years ago has been busy this week adding a new piece here and adjusting an old one there so that a new Ohio Wesleyan machine hitting on all six will roll onto the gridiron Friday for the Marshall game.

The most important new cog in this improved model will be one Robert Waid of Columbus a halfback of the triple threat variety whose brilliant work during the last two weeks of practice has moved him from the third to the first team.

The improved model will have a new driver at the wheel James Breese, Mt. Gilead who will take over the signal calling, although he will still play at half back. Halliday will remain at quarterback bbut will devote himself to carrying the ball and heaving forward passes. James Glancy, Barberton will be shifted from halfback to fullback.

GOING UP!

The whistle blows, a ball is tossed into the air, the centers leap upward—and a basketball game is on. Here we have Peggy Taffre, left, jumping against Mrs. Everett Worthington. They are members of the Illinois Athletic Women's Club.

BOWLING RESULTS

The Industrial and Business Women's Leagues bowled last night. In the latter the Logan Gas took three straigat from the Erie, and the Displaymen lost two out of three to Anthonys. The last game was a tie but Anthonys won the roll off.

Special Train to Carry 1000 Purple Rooters, 100 Piece Band to Columbus

One Team Will Be Eliminated from Big Ten Championship Race; Bucks' Victory Over Iowa Too Slight To Be Comfortable; To Iron Out Rough Spots

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—Faced with the task of battling Northwestern, co-champion of the Big Ten in 1926, for the right to stay in the Western Conference race, the Ohio State eleven is devoting every effort smoothing off the rough edges that showed last week against Iowa. The Iowa victory was by too scant a margin to be comfortable and experts agree that Northwestern should be rated as even stronger than the Hawkeye outfit. The Ohioans fully appreciate the quality of the competition ahead and realize that the Purple perhaps looks on this game as the biggest event on the 1927 schedule.

Special Train to Columbus

Interest at Evanston is running high, the Northwestern Athletic Association reports. A special train is running to Columbus for the game and several hundred students have signed for the trip. A hundred-piece band and a second special train of alumni will also reach here Saturday morning.

The two schools last played football in 1917. At that time and during the four years preceding, the Buckeyes were rated above the Purple. But Saturday's promises a battle royal, with Ohio and Northwestern on an even footing.

What the Ohio lineup will be is still uncertain at present. However, the same line of Rowan and Bell at ends, Raskowski and Urdill at tackles, Captain Meyer and Cox at the guard positions and Ullery at center is expected to start that functioned against the Hawkeyes last week. Raskowski has been in University hospital for several days with an infected arm. Ellis and Alber will probably be in the halfback positions with Fred Grim calling signals. In view of Olsner's showing work at Iowa City he may be given to call over Cory at fullback.

Purple Lineup

Some of the stalwarts who will carry the Purple for the first Northwestern team playing in the Ohio Stadium are Captain Vic Gustafson, "Tiny" Lewis and George Levisee, Gustafson is a true triple threat man and is one of the best ball carrying backs in the conference. Levison at fullback is also proficient at place kicking and punting while his ground gaining ability through the line is common knowledge. He stars through his blocking ability but is not to be despised as a ball carrier.

The Evanston line forms a worthy barrier for the backfield behind which to perform. Considering mainly of veterans, the line averages slightly over 181 pounds, which is approximately what Ohio State will offer. The stubbornness which the Purple stood against the savage attack of Utah last week promises that Ohio yardage will be gained through it only by superior effort.

Starting time of the game is set at two o'clock eastern standard time. The following officials will govern the conflict: referee, C. E. Eldridge, Michigan; umpire, W. D. Knight, Dartmouth; field judge, M. P. Ghee, Dartmouth.

Ban Johnson to Retire as League Leader Oct. 17

BY GENE HOFFMAN

Chicago, Oct. 13—Ban B. Johnson, president of the American League, will officially close his long career as baseball executive at a meeting here next Monday of the four directors of the junior circuit.

Johnson's resignation, after 31 years of service, was to have become effective Nov. 1, but the veteran Prexy affirmed today that he had called a meeting for Oct. 17, at which time, he said, he would surrender his office.

E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland Club, is said to be slated as Johnson's successor. It is believed the league's headquarters will be maintained at Chicago.

The league directors are Frank J. Navin of the Detroit Club, Clark Griffith of Washington, Phil Ball of St. Louis and Ben Shibe of Philadelphia.

Started in 1893

Johnson's spectacular career started in 1893 when he organized the Western League. Six years later the circuit changed its name to the American League and Johnson's crowd challenged the brand of baseball played by the National League.

As the new century dawned, Johnson's circuit gained in public esteem and was soon rated on a par with the erstwhile unchallenged National League.

Johnson's dominant personality placed the junior major to a place in the sun undreamed of by its early sponsors.

The veteran czar was on the verge of tears today as he discussed leaving the job that has been his passion for a third of a century. "I am turning over the office in such shape that a child could read its history," he said. "My successor, whoever he is, will have no trouble."

"I hope he will be a strong man for the good of the league. A rubber-stamp president will be a mistake. He must rule with an iron hand without regard for friendship or factions."

Yankee Victory Not Due Alone to Good Playing of Yankees, Says Menke

BY FRANK G. MENKE

Worse Than Sand Lot

... fight, sans spirit, and minus ... things that made them champs ... the National circuit, the ... played baseball that would have disgraced a sand lot league.

They couldn't have lost the first game except by establishment of a few new records in the matter of sloppy and bonehead play.

They played the second game like men who seemed to be out there on the field for no other purpose than to go through some sort of motions for about two hours. Listless and dispirited, they took their turn at bat and then sojourned to the field and made motions until a kindly Fate helped them to retire the Yankees.

After which they went to bat again, went on the field again, and thus played out their nine innings.

"A yellow ball club," some have explained.

Not Yellow

But, of all things, the Pirates are not yellow. No club that lacks gameness and courage could have won the National League fight of 1927. For to achieve that victory they had to overhaul the flying Cubs, beat back the fierce rally of the Giants and then crush and humiliate the world's champion Cardinals.

And yet the same team that fought its way to the top, went against the Yankees and practically curled up. The fighting spirit was as foreign to the Pirate display in the series as Afghanistan is foreign to Saskatchewan.

Those who wish may cheer themselves hoarse over the idea that "the Yankees completely outclassed the Pirates. They did—in that series. But the game that the Pirates played was of such terrible variety that the Red Sox might have crushed them with almost equal ease.

The Yankees won, not so much because they were so great, but because the Pirates were so terrible. The kind of baseball the Yankees sprayed upon the records, was good enough to whip the Pirates four times in a row. But it wouldn't have won four straight games from any other team that has gone into world series conflict in the past 20 years.

Hit Under Mark

Praise the Yanks to the highest heavens—and then it must be conceded that their play was nothing superlative. They hit 30 or 35 points under their regular season mark; they pulled three errors in four games; they never broke out with the rash of expected home runs; they stole only two bases during the four games; they garnered every "break" that was possible.

And 27 times in four games they struck out.

The Pirates, playing the most listless baseball ever seen in a world series, exhibiting no fight and no fire, executing seven errors in four games, making every mistake of hand, foot and head that baseballing humans can make, still were beaten only twice by decisive margins.

What was the matter with the Pirates?

None can ever say—unless those who wish to speak, may try to explain it by mention of the name "Kiki" Cuyler.

In the opening game the occasion arose where a pinch hitter was needed. Few players in either league are more dangerous in a pinch than Cuyler. But Donie Bush, the manager, did not call upon him. The man he called was a failure.

Cuyler and Bush long ago had some sort of disagreement. Since then Cuyler never has been used by the Pirate Christain except for bench warming purposes. Bush and his feelings toward Cuyler, have kept the great "Kiki" out of the lineup.

Is Bush To Blame

Did the instinct of Bush to use Cuyler in that first game take the spirit out of the team? Did those Pirates, many of them pals of Cuyler, resent Bush's action? What effect had such resentment? Did they give their best at all moments in the second game?

Or did some hoping to show up the need for Cuyler, especially in pinch hitting moments try to force that knowledge on Bush by failure to give of their best and their mind and their muscular skill and strength in the second and third games?

In the last before the refusal of Bush to use Cuyler in a pinch, had happened, the Pirates, even though they played pop-eyed baseball, gave the Yankees a great scare and came within a one base blow of winning the contest.

Cuyler's bat might have turned the trick. But Bush kept "Kiki" on the bench.

No Life In Bats

After that, the Pirates played two games like men in a trance.

Then came the final combat, when, with their backs to the wall, the Pirates had to fight to save themselves from annihilation.

What a vast contrast was their fourth game effort to that which they put forth in the second and third.

What was the explanation?

Some will insist that the Yankees outclassed the Pirates. Maybe they did. But it is noticeable that in the first and the fourth games, when the Pirates mysteries.

really were FIGHTING to win, they garnered close to 20 hits, punched out a total of seven runs—and lost their games because of the "breaks" of the game came to favor the Yankees.

A great ball club, this Yankee organization; perhaps one of the greatest of all time. But great as it is, it doesn't seem that it had enough power to annihilate the Pirates four straight times without luck to favor it on two occasions and something inexplicable to assist on twice more.

Many explanations have been offered as to what ailed the Pirates. None is really satisfactory; none complete. And perhaps none shall come through the drift of the years, for the showing of the Pirates perhaps ever shall remain as one of baseball's eyal

Last Practice

Notre Dame has held its final prac... for the Navy game and the Sailors ... will take it easy today and to... morrow. Hansford, a light back, is making long runs in practice and will be in the opening Navy lineup.

Syracuse is fast developing a satisfactory passing game for use against Georgetown. The line also has improved.

Secret practice is being held at Yale for the first time this season. Waldo Greene, last year's freshman captain, is now in shape and probably will get into the Brown game. "The "Iron men" are taking only light drill.

Having shown an improved attack yesterday when Holbrook and French scored three touchdowns against the scrubs, the Harvard regulars will concentrate today on a defense against Holy Cross plays.

Most of the Eastern teams worked out in the rain yesterday. Final practice sessions for Saturday's games will be held today.

LA RUE WILL PLAY WOODSTOCK FRIDAY

Blue and White Hopes To Reverse Results of Previous Games

LaRue, Oct. 13—Although emerging from the Richwood fray last Friday on the long end of a 19 to 12 score, the LaRue football warriors earned their victory at a very dear price. M. Allen plunging back on the Blue and White even has been unable to participate in any practice so far this week, but has been content to watch all proceedings from the side lines. Allen received a bad leg sprain and seems to make slow progress on the way to recovery, and will be unable to start in the Woodstock fry. "Pete" Couch, diminutive end, was also laid on the shelf early in last week's game, but will probably be in shape for the kickoff tomorrow.

Has Veterans

Woodstock comes to LaRue with a veteran outfit determined to run their string of victories over the Blue and White to a total of three. LaRue has played but two games with Woodstock in their athletic relationship and have lost both by comparatively large scores. LaRue is as determined to add another league scalp to their belt and make the winning streak stand at two to one.

Friday week, Woodstock and Richwood fought a see-saw game which ended with the score standing at 0 to 0. Woodstock having a slight edge on the Richwood team. The fray tomorrow, to be settled on the LaRue gridiron, promises to be a real battle. LaRue has not lost a league game so far, and is determined to add to their percentage column.

Game called on the LaRue field at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

FLIERS DRILL ON PASS FOR BEARCATS

Dayton Attack May Be Shifted; Two Out with Injuries

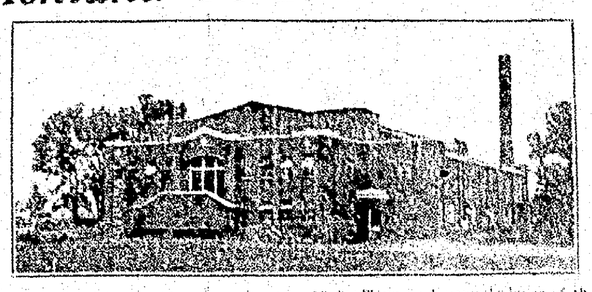
Dayton, Oct. 13—Coach Baujan is stressing forward pass defense in his practice sessions this week in preparation for the game next Saturday with University of Cincinnati. Last week's tussle with Holy Cross showed the Fliers that the forward pass is a double edged sword. The Fliers gained 116 yards via the air against the Crusaders, but the Easterners made 117 by the same route.

Coach Fitzpatrick is considering changing the system of general secondary defense from a 4-man diamond shape to a 5-man box formation. Fitz claims this gives more protection both against plunges and forwards.

Frank McDermott, star right tackle, is suffering from a bad charley-horse and probably will not break into the Cincinnati game. Baujan will probably save him for the Quantico Marine contest the following week.

Bill Reynolds, Philadelphia halfback, will be out of the lineup for about a week. Bill developed a bad infection on his face and until it heals will watch the practice maneuvers from the sidelines.

New $75,000 Gymnasium at Ashland To Be Dedicated



Ashland, Oct. 13—Leaders in the field of scholastic athletics will form the feature of the program which has been arranged for the dedication of Ashland College's new $75,000 gymnasium.

H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School athletic association, as well as C. W. Savage, professor of physical education at Oberlin College will deliver dedication addresses.

The new structure which replaces the old gym which was lost by fire a year ago, places Ashland College among the foremost Ohio schools, as far as gymnasium facilities are concerned. The gym is complete with showers and locker rooms and offices for physical education directors. There is a playing floor of 4,000 square feet. Seating facilities will take care of more than 1,000 persons.

BABE PITCHES

Twenty Thousand Fans See Ruth and Gehrig in Brooklyn

New York, Oct. 13—It appeared today that the Bustin' Babes, barnstorming team featuring Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, probably will be unable to complete any of its exhibition games. Following a similar demonstration in Trenton, N. J., on the previous day, 20,000 fans broke up yesterday's game in Brooklyn by swarming on the diamond. Neither Babe nor Lou hit a home, but Ruth's pitching was of such a high grade that the spectators deemed it fitting to rush on the field and congratulate him.

The Army and Notre Dame have met regularly on the gridiron since 1913, with the exception of 1918, when the war interferred. Of the 13 games played to date Notre Dame has won 9 games and the Army 3, with one game a tie.

A man usually gets what he deserves in this world, but he sometimes thinks this is one of the world's drawbacks.

Notre Dame Builds National Reputation By Turning Out Winning Team Each Year

BY MALCOLM ROY

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—If any American football eleven is more National in its scope and appeal than even the Annapolis or West Point eleven, that team is Notre Dame, coached by the ever-original and ever-colorful Knute Rockne, which plays the Navy at Baltimore on Saturday in its first big engagement. Never perhaps in the history of the game has any eleven been known so universally from coast to coast and from the Gulf to the Canadian border as is the great Notre Dame that rolls out annually from South Bend, Indiana, to travel thousands of miles in the course of the season and finish at or very near the top of the football heap each and every season.

Jim Thorpe Appealed

Perhaps the Catholic Indians of the fabled past with Jim Thorpe, Wauseka, Mount Pleasant and the other famous warriors of Glenn Warner's Redskins had the appeal, in some measure at least, that one finds in Notre Dame but never once did the Indians even approach the greatness which is an annual occurrence with Notre Dame. Then, too, the Indians had their good seasons and their bad seasons like most normal elevens, but Notre Dame just goes on being good apparently forever.

Small reason to wonder, therefore, why Notre Dame is the greatest "big money" eleven the game has ever known or is perhaps likely to know for years to come. A combination of Rockne and an apparently flexible curriculum which leaves plenty of opportunity for travel during term have served to make Notre Dame the most traveled college eleven that ever tossed a pigskin.

Even this fall, which apparently is an off year for the South Bend team so far as traveling is concerned, they already have played or will play at Detroit, Baltimore, Washington, New York, Des Moines and Chicago, calling for more than 6,000 miles of journeying to and from their battles. There have been years when this mileage has been more than doubled.

Expect to Break Record

Against the Navy on Saturday, Notre Dame is expected to play before a crowd estimated at 60,000 which will draw heavily not only from Baltimore and environs but from Washington as well. But the crowd of that game is likely to be eclipsed by some 15,000 or more by the throng which will turn out to see Rockne's eleven face the Army at the Yankee Stadium in New York on November 12 and is only slightly more than half as large as the one which it is predicted will see Notre Dame tackle the University of Southern California at Soldier Field, scene of the Dempsey-Tunney battle, on Nov. 26. Already 45,000 tickets have been sold for that game and it is confidently expected that the attendance will exceed the crowd of 111,000 which saw the Army and the Navy play there last fall.

Rockne estimates conservatively that Notre Dame will have been seen by 400,000 or more persons before the season closes. This number was never even approached by Harvard, Yale or Princeton of the Big Three, which held the records for season attendance before Notre Dame began packing them in all over the country. And if Notre Dame had chose to play Georgia Tech and Minnesota at Atlanta and Minneapolis, respectively, instead of on its home field at South Bend, these figures would be subject to revision upwards.

Meet Common Foe

For the first time in many years the Army and the Navy, which provide the big service clash as the climax of the season, will meet a common foeman in Notre Dame but there will be little real opportunity to compare the two due to the fact that Rockne's eleven will take on the service teams virtually a full month apart. Were the games to be played only a week or even a fortnight apart, a worthwhile comparison might be made, but too much water gushes over the mill wheel in a month's time especially a month of a football season that is at best only eight or nine weeks long.

Using that overworked jag "comparative scores," Notre Dame appears to have quite an edge on the Army because both met the University of Detroit on successive Saturdays. While West Point had to work hard to win by a score of 6 to 0, Notre Dame ran all around Gus Dorais' eleven for a 20 to 0 victory. This line of reasoning helps not at all in indicating that the Navy-Notre Dame game will bring forth aside from the fact that it is usually a safe policy to install Notre Dame as the favorite beforehand because it is seldom necessary to explain way Rockne's team did not come through.

But all things considered Notre Dame probably is at least two touchdowns stronger than the Middies at this early stage of the season.

GRID CAPTAIN

Eddie Hannegan is the captain of this year's Navy team. He is the signal barker of the eleven and is fast and a good passer.

Last year, Navy completely upset the Michigan team by messing up 24 of the 31 passes attempted by the Wolverines. The gobs showed their true power by running up a pair of touchdowns in 20 minutes against the Army.

Prices Move Through Narrow Range in Irregular Trading

MOTOR STOCKS WEAK ON MART

General Trend of List Is Upward; Few Recoveries Registered

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks irregular; industrial stocks irregular; domestic bonds steady; foreign bonds firm; call money 4 per cent; grain unsettled; copper steady; oil weak; cotton unsettled; rubber steady; sugar steady; pig iron irregular; foreign exchange irregular.

New York, Oct. 13—Stock prices moved through a narrow range in irregular trading today, with the general trend of the market leaders upward. Selling of the oils and specialties which bore the brunt of the recent reaction resulted in moderate recoveries in depressed sections of the market, while some weakness appeared in a few of the popular motor stocks, with Hudson the object of attack.

In general, the professionals were inclined to the bullish side of the market, with their efforts concentrated on a new upward drive for General Motors. But after a labored advance of about 2 points, in very heavy trading, General Motors fell back to the lower levels, under an avalanche of selling orders. Steel common advanced more than a point, and Colorado Fuel and Iron in the steel industry just now are so uncertain to stimulate aggressive buying of independent steel stocks.

Outside of the money market, financial interests was mostly absorbed by the favorable reception accorded new offerings of about $125,000,000 in new home and foreign bonds, the latter including two attractive issues of Prussian State and Brazilian State 6's and 8's. The commodity markets were dull and featureless, with cotton firming up after an early reaction, and most of the grains slightly lower. Bankers in the financial district reported a considerable increase in the volume of acceptance financing. Time money was firm and call money ruled at 4 per cent.

RUBBER MARKET

New York, Oct. 13—Trading in the crude market for crude rubber futures was quiet with prices steady.

Sellers asked 25⅝ cents for spot and Oct. ribbed smoked sheets; 26⅛ cents for Dec; 26½ cents for Jan.-March; 26⅝ cents for April-June.

The Dalai Lama, or ruler of Tibet, has imposed a tax based on the size of each subject's nose.

GRADE A MILK SOLD IN CITY

Four Gallons Daily Being Supplied to Local Distributor, Report

Bacteria count of 7,000 per centimeter compared with a count of 30,000 in the general run of pasteurized milk and a count of 70,000 in non-pasteurized milk, were shown by Dr. J. T. Gruber, milk and meat inspector at the monthly meeting of the City Board of Health held at the city health department yesterday afternoon, as an outstanding proof of the superior quality of Grade A milk.

But one dairy is producing this class of milk at the present time. A start was made with several quarts two months ago and at the present time four gallons are being furnished a local distributor. The milk sells at 15 cents a quart but because of the large per cent of butter fat or cream the milk is considered as cheap as the 12 cent milk. The milk is produced by tuberculin tested cattle and the entire plant meets every requirement of the state code.

Investigates Complaint

Dr. Gruber also reported that he had investigated a complaint made by distributors of the manner in which some of the hotels handled the milk bottles, some of the bottles being returned to the plant containing cigaret stumps and chewing gum. The hotel proprietors, he said had promised to co-operate in putting a stop to the practice.

A sediment test of milk to determine the amount of foreign substance, it contains, is being made by Dr. Gruber. The test consists of forcing a plot of milk by pressure through a small paper disk. The sediment found on the surface of the disk, indicating the amount of foreign substance in the milk. Dr. Gruber reported he had made 243 of these tests.

Improvement Shown

Following the test, the disks are pasted to a card containing the name of the producer and given to the distributor with instructions that it is to be shown to the producer. In his way the farmer can see with his own eyes the amount of foreign substance in the milk. A marked improvement in decreasing the amount of foreign substance in the milk has been shown since starting the tests, Dr. Gruber said.

Dr. Gruber also reported that he had collected 416 samples during the month of September, had made 184 reduction tests and 21 inspections. Six orders for new milk houses were issued during the month and six permits granted. Two permits were cancelled. Five tests for tuberculosis were made and no reactors found, Dr. Gruber reported.

Scrub Bull Trial Planned as Feature of Stock Campaign

FIVE NEARLY WELL IN PARALYSIS CASES

Dr. W. J. Weiser Makes Report to City Health Board at Meeting

Five of the 19 victims of infantile paralysis reported in the city during the recent epidemic, have practically recovered, according to a report made by Health Commissioner W. J. Weiser at the monthly meeting of the City Board of Health in the offices of the city health department yesterday afternoon.

One death resulted from the disease. Four persons are now taking treatment, the health commissioner said. The five which have apparently recovered from the disease, the physician said, are able to walk without showing any effects of the disease.

The health commissioner also reported 18 cases of contagious and infectious diseases during the month. Five of these were infantile paralysis, five scarlet fever, three small pox and five miscellaneous. Dr. Weiser also reported that he had made 48 investigation visits in various parts of the city during the month of September and that he had examined 12 handlers of food in restaurants and hotels.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

SET FOR NOV. 11 AT FAIRGROUND

Arrangements Made at Meeting of Stockmen and Agricultural Teachers

A scrub bull trial a part of the educational campaign being carried on by stock raisers, dairymen and agriculture vocational teachers in an effort to develop an increased interest in pure-bred cattle, and in which a scrub bull will be placed on trial as a robber and a worthless animal in general, will be held in the art hall at the fairgrounds on Nov. 11, starting at 1 o'clock.

Plans for the trial were made at a meeting of stockmen and vocational agriculture teachers held at the Isaly Dairy Co. plant last night with L. B. Fidler, agriculture teacher at Waldo, presiding as chairman. Committees were also appointed. Charles H. Isaly, A. P. Mills, agriculture teacher at Larlton, and Roland Leeper were appointed to have charge of the publicity. R. N. Tomlin and J. J. Kreglow, vocational teachers, to obtain the scrub bull and H. H. Berringer, of south of the city, Fred Isler of near Prospect and Carl Firstenberger, of east of the city, were appointed to have charge of the three breeds of registered bulls which will be exhibited at the trial.

Mr. Berringer will have charge of the Holstein exhibit, Fred Isler of the Jersey and Carl Firstenberger of the Guernsey. It was the plan of those who attended the meeting last night to have at least two of each breed represented.

To Present Bull

In addition to the trial, which will be presided over by John H. Clark, attorney, as judge, and which will be featured with arguments by local attorneys and the examination of a number of expert witnesses, a Holstein bull won by the county last spring as an award for the greatest number of bulls purchased from the bull special train which was operated by the Erie railroad through this county, will be formally presented to the community by an official of the Erie railroad. The bull arrived several months ago and is now being quartered on the farm of Emanuel Boger near Waldo.

The bull is one of four community bulls now in the county which form what is known as a "bull ring" and are maintained for the purpose of encouraging the breeding of a better grade of cattle.

In addition to local dairy and cattlemen, it is expected the trial will be attended by representatives of the state department of agriculture. While the trial will be of a semi-humorous nature, it was explained by Mr. Fidler last night, it will be educational as well, the arguments of attorneys bringing out many of the facts that are now being emphasized by those who are carrying on the campaign for better cattle.

REMUS NOT LIKELY TO DEFEND HIMSELF

Holds Two-Hour Conference with Noted Cincinnati Attorney

Cincinnati, Oct. 13—Indications are that George J. Remus, confessed wife-slayer and former king of the bootleggers, will not defend himself during the coming fight to save his life from the electric chair for the murder of Imogene Remus in Eden Park last Thursday.

It was learned today that Remus had held a two-hour conference with Charles H. Elston, noted Cincinnati criminal attorney, in the Hamilton County Jail where the former Chicago lawyer is awaiting trial.

"It is true that I had a conference with Remus," said Attorney Elston, "however, I can not at this time divulge the nature of our meeting."

Since the fatal shooting last week, Remus has contended that he would defend himself in this most important fight of his carrer—the battle of his life.

If Remus has engaged counsel it is the result of the influence of his daughter, Romola, and his confidential advisers. They have been insistant that the best legal aid be obtained.

Many prominent law firms in Chicago, New York and other places have offered their services but to date Remus has been insistent that he would try his own case.

Additional evidence was added to Remus' self-styled "Liberty Box" today when he received information from Chicago disclosing the location of two safety deposit boxes held by his late wife and the storage place of the furniture removed from his daughter, Romola's, apartment by Mrs. Remus last spring.
